DRIVE AT INDIA BY KAISER

CAMPAIGN FOR CALAIS GIVEN UP

By International News Service.

NISH, via London, Oct. 15.—Serbia today declared war upon Bulgaria. The following announcement was issued:

"Owing to attacks on the Serbian army by Bulgaria on the fronts of Tzaichar and Radovitze, Serbia considers herself at war with Bulgaria."

By International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—That the Kaiser has abandoned all plans for driving through the western lines to Calais is practically admitted by Berlin.

It is now realized here that the purpose of the German Emperor in his Balkan drive is not merely the relief of Turkey, but an attack on the British Indian empire, at the same time clearing a pathway for German commerce with Asia.

If the British abandon the operations in the Dardanelles, as has been suggested, it will be for the purpose of throwing the whole weight of British power in the southern war theatre against the Austro-Germans before they have driven through Serbia to the friendly soil of Bulgaria and Turkey.

The Berliner Tageblatt "sizes up" the situation as follows:

"Throughout the war many Germans have had their gaze fixed upon Calais.

ACCEPTS LESSON.

"Unmoved by foolish sentiment, the German general staff acted according to the circumstances arising from the development of the war drama. It accepted the lesson that the nearest possible road for an attack upon our hitherto foes does not lead through Calais.

"Our strength, like that of our allies, lies in land power. We must seek to deliver the decisive blow in another direction, whether the process of accomplishing be tedious and wearying or not. The principal thing is that we are now on our way to Constantinople. With Belgrade in our hands, the first obstacle has already been removed.

"A doctrine which for decades dominated world politics is on trial, the

German Warship Sunk by British Submarine

By International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 15.—In a brief but severe engagement between a British submarine and a German warship the latter was sunk in the Baltic on Thursday.

The German boat, a torpedo boat destroyer, was torpedoed and blown up.

Before the submarine could launch a torpedo she was violently shelled by the German ship, but, according to reports reaching here, was not damaged.

The torpedo boat, which was sunk, was, with a German cruiser and two destroyers, guarding the southern entrance of the sound between Sweden and Denmark, and connecting the Baltic Sea with the Cattegat. It is believed that all the members of the German ship were killed.

Add Big Tract to Ward 19 Playground

Seventy thousand additional feet of land for the Ward 19 playground was provided for in a vote by the Park and Recreation Department Commissioners today, and approved by the Mayor.

This will give Ward 19 the entire tract of land between Tremont and Smith streets, Sherbrook place and the Mission Church wall, with the exception of a small corner between a passageway at Nos 1493 to 1497 Tremont street.

Foot and Mouth Disease Controlled

Dr. Lester H. Howard, State Commissioner of Animal Industry, announced today that foot and mouth disease is under control. The infection is confined to one herd in Leicester. Investigation of 1,200 farms in Worcester County failed to reveal the presence of the disease elsewhere. The quarantine will continue, as a preventive measure.

Daniels Wires to Walsh on Drydock

Governor Walsh received a telegram today from Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, containing congratulations in connection with the proposed drydock. It read: "I am extremely gratified to hear that actual work has begun on the Commonwealth drydock. It will be a positive asset to the naval service and should assure to Boston a large share of the mercantile trade."

GLASGOW ENDS OWN LIFE

By International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Colonel Edward Brodie Glasgow, of Worcester, Mass., committed suicide by shooting today at the home of his brother, William Glasgow at Elkins Park. He had been here ten days and is said to have exhibited symptoms of extreme nervousness.

Col. Edward B. Glasgow was well known in Worcester, where he practiced law more than forty years. He was graduated from Yale in 1863, and went direct to Worcester and opened a law office. For eight or ten years he was an instructor at the Highland Military Academy, and while holding this position was appointed to the Governor's staff.

Following this he settled down to law. Twenty years ago he was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature and served two years. He was known in Worcester as a special authority on banking law. He was attorney for three co-operative banks, up to the time of his death. For five years he had been in poor health.

Settlement in Danbury Hatters' Case Agreed On

By International News Service.

DANBURY, Ct., Oct. 15.—Terms of settlement of the suit of D. E. Loewe & Co., the local hatting firm; against the United Hatters of North America, in which judgment for the plaintiffs to recover $253,000, was rendered by the United States Supreme Court and execution recently issued against property of 186 individual hatters in this city, Norwalk and Bethel, were agreed upon today by the United Hatters and their attorneys and Loewe & Co. The terms were sent to Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for Loewe & Co. in New York city, for his approval. Pending his reply the terms of settlement were refused here.

Would Have Pope Regulate Warfare

By International News Service.

ROME, Oct. 15. — The Corriere D'Italia today publishes an article by Cardinal Gasquet urging that the Pope be given authority by a league of Christian nations to enforce respect for international laws regulating warfare.

The article, which is said to have received the approval of Pope Benedict, advocates a league which could insure respect for moral principles, enforcing them with arms if necessary.

'Washington House' Burned in New York

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The old colonial mansion which has stood at One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street and Sheridan avenue since Revolutionary times, and which was said to have been one of the headquarters of General George Washington, was burned today.

Upon one of the windows, scratched with a diamond, were the signatures of General Washington Marquis de Lafayette, Alexander Hamilton and others famous in American history.

ATTORNEYS RAPPED IN R.R. TRIAL

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
Staff Correspondent, International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Judge Hunt, in the United States District Court, today sternly ordered the attorneys in the New Haven conspiracy trial to stop asking talesmen "foolish questions," and to speed up the trial of the eleven millionaire railway directors.

At luncheon recess only six of the twenty-two peremptory challenges had been used, three by the government and three by the defence.

Francis J. Rhue, even after the long indictment had been read, had an opinion and was excused.

Alfred S. Major qualified temporarily as a juryman. The defence exercised its third peremptory challenge by rejecting William Tucker.

M. H. Adams was examined for the vacancy, but disqualified because he held an unshakable opinion as to the guilt or innocence of New Haven directors.

John A. Bigelow was excused by the court on account of his age.

Frederick H. Bennett, called to fill the breach, was excused because he had an opinion.

Fred C. Bonny was retained for the present as juror No. 6. Alfred S.

MRS. J. S. DRAPER

HOUSE WAS LOOTED AS FAMILY DINED

Two men in an automobile are believed to be the persons who robbed the Milton home of J. Sumner Draper, Boston real estate man and treasurer of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, of valuable jewelry Monday night, according to information that came to the police today.

The value of the stolen gems is said by some members of the family to be $3,000 to $4,000, and by the police to be $10,000.

Despite the police estimate of $10,000, Mrs. Draper this afternoon said the total value was between $3,000 and $4,000, but added that the thieves had taken family heirlooms which were priceless.

SAW TWO MEN.

Mrs. Draper told of an important clew furnished by an expressman who had seen the two men fleeing from the Draper home and had observed them get into a waiting auto, in which they speeded away.

The police said that they had a suspect under surveillance.

Mrs. Draper said the theft had been committed between 7 and 8 o'clock last Monday afternoon.

"Mr. Draper and our two daughters and myself were at dinner at the time," said Mrs. Draper. "During that time the house was entered. The robber or robbers came through a window in my bedroom.

"The stolen articles included a ring set with a large ruby and a number of small diamonds. This was worth $2,000 and was a present to me from my husband. The other articles taken were a gold watch and chain belonging to me, a pearl scarfpin, and several heirlooms which had been handed

QUESTIONS HINT AT NEW HAVEN DEFENCE

Major was excused by the court and Harvey E. Fisk took his place in the box.

George Weekley was challenged by the government. M. W. Capell was excused because of his opinion. Charles A. Lindley was excused because of his acquaintance with the family of Charles M. Pratt, one of the defendants. George S. McDonald had an opinion so fixed that evidence could not move it, he said, and Judge Hunt excused him. Henry H. Jacobson was disqualified by his fixed opinion and court recessed for luncheon.

It is expected that the jury will not be completed before the week-end. The trial itself is expected to last two months.

As indicated by the questions put to talesmen by De Lancey Nicoll of counsel for the defence, the principal defence of Rockefeller and the other directors will be that, as the operations and rates were regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the points covered by the indictments, the directors are not therefore responsible.

Not all of the eleven defendants were in court today.

The charge against the New Haven directors constitutes only a misdemeanor," said Delancy Nicoll, counsel for Lewis Cass Ledyard, "and they do not have to appear in person."

J. A. Hemingway, A. Heaton Robertson, F. F. Brewster, Charles M. Pratt, Robert W. Taft and E. D. Robbins were the defendants in court when Judge Hunt reconvened the trial.

A few minutes later William Rockefeller appeared at the door, took a survey of the room and went away, saying he would return.

In anticipation of further depletion of the jury box by peremptory challenge another panel of fifty talesmen was called today and half of them offered excuses but Judge Hunt refused to let any off.

Kaiser Would Enlist Spain and Sweden

LONDON, Oct. 15.—A Rome correspondent cables that he is informed that Germany is making two more diplomatic moves against the allies.

"One is in Spain," he says, "where she is tempting the Conservative Cabinet with an offer of Gibraltar and Morocco, and the other is in Sweden, where the bait is Finland. Germany's condition is that the two countries shall enter into the European war at a moment convenient to herself, and that Spain shall give her that part of Morocco which she had marked out as German at the time of the Agadir affair.

SAYS BULGARIA FIGHTS FOR HER TREATY RIGHTS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The first official explanation of Bulgaria's decision to enter the European war given to the American people was made here today to the International News Service by the Bulgarian minister to the United States, Stephan Panaretoff. It follows:

By STEPHAN PANARETOFF, Minister from Bulgaria to the United States.

Bulgaria has entered the war in Europe in defence of the principle of "Bulgaria for the Bulgarians." She seeks to recover Macedonia, whose Christian population has been solidly and really Bulgarian since the beginning of modern Bulgaria. She has no ambition beyond the limits of nationality.

Serbia, if the allies win this war, will no doubt be granted a great extension of territory. If she gets all she wants, she will have Bosnia, Herzegovina, Dalmatia, Slavonia, Northern Albania and parts of Hungary, and will be a State of ten or eleven million population. Such a State will destroy the balance of power in the Balkan peninsula and will by no means have followed the lines of nationality.

WAR FOR TREATY RIGHTS.

Bulgaria seeks to enforce the treaty made by her with Serbia before they attempted to liberate Macedonia from Turkish rule by the first Balkan war. Under the terms of that agreement, Serbia conceded to Bulgaria most of Macedonia, because the population was Bulgarian. A part of Macedonia, however, known as "the contested zone," was to be submitted to the arbitration of the Russian Emperor.

It was chiefly because Bulgaria insisted upon the exact compliance of Servia with this treaty that the second Balkan war was fought.

The Bulgarian government discovered, two days before the mobilization of its troops in the first war, that Serbia had sent a circular letter to its envoys in the several capitals of Europe, urging them to improve upon the governments and the public in the countries to which they were accredited that Serbia claimed a frontier such that it included towns actually given in the treaty to Bulgaria.

SERBIA'S DOUBLE DEALING.

As early as December, 1912, during the first Balkan war, Serbia openly claimed part of the conceded Macedonian territory. By the treaty of Bucharest, which closed the second Balkan war, Bulgaria was stripped of most of her Macedonian territory and lost to Roumania part of the richest region of upper Bulgaria. This latter territory must some day come back to the Bulgarian nation.

Greece is today declaring herself an "Armed neutral." I cannot predict the future course of the government with respect to this war. The same holds true of Roumania.

After the signing of the treaty of Bucharest, Greece, Serbia and Roumania with consciences guilty over the despoiling of Bulgaria, entered into a compact to defend one another from attack by Bulgaria. Today Greece refuses to aid Serbia under the pretext that Serbia is attacked not merely by Bulgaria, but by Germany and Austria.

TRUE TO PAN-SLAVISM.

The statement that Bulgaria is to have "German kultur" imposed upon her by this war is not accurate. Bulgaria will work out her own destiny and take her culture wherever she finds it. Her students go to the universities of France, England, Germany, Belgium, the United States and Russia. We have over 400 graduates of Robert College, the American college in Constantinople, who are prominent in Bulgarian public life.

Nor is it true that Bulgaria is a traitor to Pan-Slavism, or to the Slav race. In the Balkan peninsula no nation has been so enthusiastic over the Slavic idea as Bulgaria, but the Slavs in general have been repelled by the despotic character of the government of Russia, by the past, and only with the development of constitutional government in Russia will the ties of Pan-Slavism as between Russia and Bulgaria in particular be strengthened. That time may come after Bulgaria has gained Macedonia, which is hers by right and by treaty.

MISS CLARK, 195 HUNTINGTON AV., NOT DEFENDANT

On September 23 the AMERICAN in a dispatch from Alfred, Maine, in reference to the verdict in a suit brought by Eliza A. Parks of Portsmouth, N. H., for assault and battery, through an unfortunate error stated that the defendant was a Miss Mary P. Clark of No. 195 Huntington avenue, Boston.

The defendant was a Miss Mary P. Clark, but not Miss Mary P. Clark of No. 195 Huntington avenue, and the connecting of the Miss Clark of No. 195 Huntington avenue was due to a mistake in connecting this item with an address which had nothing to do with the case in question.

The AMERICAN regrets mentioning Miss Mary P. Clark of No. 195 Huntington avenue in connection with the case, and her annoyance was justified.

MRS. LAMAR HAS MRS. HEARST AS GUEST

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Mrs. William Bailey Lamar was a luncheon hostess at the Fairmont Hotel at one of the most elaborate of the season. Mrs. Phoebe Hearst was the guest of honor.

The table was a glowing mass of autumn colors. In the centre stood a large brown wicker basket filled with Portola chrysanthemums. This was surrounded by baskets from which tumbled in artistic profusion blending red and yellow chrysanthemums and Aaron Ward roses. Twined among the baskets were graceful garlands of small old-fashioned chrysanthemums and shimmery bronze ribbons.

Seated about the table were about sixty of the leading women in and around San Francisco, as well as prominent visitors to the exposition.

NELLIE WALKER, Lynn burlesque actress, whose mother is going to ask an inquiry into daughter's fall, which resulted in her death.

GIRL IS DEAD IN LYNN AUTO MYSTERY

Miss Nellie Walker, daughter of Mrs. Patrick O'Brien, No. 12 Palfrey street, Lynn, died at the Lynn Hospital today from a broken back, received, her friends say, when she refused to take a "dare" and fell from the twentieth round of a ladder, in a Marblehead garage, at midnight last Tuesday.

There is considerable mystery attached to the affair and the police are searching for two young men, who are alleged to have taken Miss Walker and her chum, Miss Grace Tufts of Malden, on an automobile ride on the night she received her injuries.

The accident is said to have happened because one of Miss Walker's feet was deformed, which caused her to miss her footing on the ladder and fall backward on the cement floor of the garage. Miss Walker was an unusually good [illegible]. She said the fact of one foot being shorter than the other gave her an advantage in dancing the tango.

Both Miss Walker and Miss Tufts were burlesque actresses. They were to have appeared at a Hanover street Casino next week in a "sister act."

SOCIETY GIRL DENIES STAGE ENGAGEMENT

Philip L. Saltonstall of Hyde Park denies a rumor from New York that his daughter, Rosa Saltonstall, would soon set out upon a theatrical career in a Broadway production.

Miss Saltonstall, while admitting that she would not shun Belasco if he should approach, contract in hand, was emphatic in her statement that she is not going on the stage, does not expect to enter the theatrical profession in the near future, and in fact, that she would not be greatly surprised if she should never appear professionally before the footlights.

Mr. Saltonstall said that the talk probably started in New York after his daughter had been seen in the company of Miss Marbury. "She has always been greatly interested in the theatre," he says. "She met Miss Marbury, who is a dramatic critic and producer, and visited many theatrical productions with her when in New York recently. She is not going on the stage right away. She is here at home now."

Miss Saltonstall is a sister of Mrs. P. B. Weld and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr. She has taken prominent parts in amateur theatricals of Boston society people in recent years and has considerable talent.

"I have no job and don't expect one," says Miss Saltonstall. "I did look around to see what was to be had, I will admit, but I didn't see anything that I liked."

"Would you accept an engagement if one were offered you?" she was asked.

"If the position was a good one and just what I wanted I probably would," she replied. "But I don't expect to have one offered to me and the chances are I will never go on the stage."

"Has there been any opposition on the part of your parents to your going on the stage?"

"Not an atom. I haven't received any offers yet, but if I should I would be free to decide for myself whether I should accept or not. If I were going on the [illegible] I would tell you so frankly, but I am not."

Secrecy Surrounds Artaud Divorce Suit

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Surrounded by great secrecy, papers have been filed in the Supreme Court in behalf of Mrs. Anna S. Artaud asking divorce from Theodore P. Artaud, former assistant general manager of the Hudson and Manhattan Railway Company and now supervisor of the land department of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Mrs. Artaud was introduced to Washington and New York society the summer before last.

Millionaire Sacrificed Estate for Son

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A father's sacrifice for his son, who had lost several million dollars in the stock market, is the story told by the transfer tax appraisal of the estate of Warner Van Norden, founder of the trust company bearing his name, who died on January 1, 1914. The estate of the former millionaire is insolvent, and notes aggregating more than $1,000,000, which the decedent received from his son, Warner Montaigne Van Norden, who succeeded to the headship of the trust company, are entered in the appraisal by Albert J. Berwin, the appraiser, as of no value.

It is asserted that Mr. Van Norden bankrupted himself in an effort to straighten out the indebtedness that grew out of this son's enormous speculations, which at times reached $10,000,000. The Rev. Theodore Langdon Van Norden, another son of the late banker, placed the deficit in the estate of his father at $750,000. Warner M. Van Norden is now being sued by his brother and his sister, Miss Cora Langdon Van Norden, as executors of the will of their father, for the amount he is alleged to owe the estate. They do not expect to realize anything.

BRITAIN DEMANDS REPRISALS AGAINST ZEPPELIN RAIDERS

LONDON, Oct. 15.—There is a general demand here today for reprisals on Germany, following the sixth Zeppelin raid on London, the casualties in which total 56 killed and 114 injured.

Letters and telegrams were received by some of the cabinet ministers from their constituents in which they were warned that political defeat would be their fate unless they took radical steps.

The proposal that a British air fleet be stationed in eastern France to bombard three German towns every time Zeppelins raided an English town met instant approval in many quarters. Discussing this phase today, Archibald Hurd, military expert of the Daily Telegraph, said:

"It is more than probable that the Germans will have cause to wish that Count Zeppelin never had been born. Of all the great continental cities, Berlin is, owing to its geographical situation and in conditions which we hope soon will exist, one of those most open to attack from neighboring states. Germany in time will suffer from the same agents she is using today.

"There are grounds for entertaining the expectation that by Christmas the menace that Zeppelins offer London will have been further restricted. The offensive and defensive will then have been developed along adequate lines.

WILL SUFFER TOMORROW.

"If we suffer today Germany will suffer tomorrow. Her ascendancy in the air on the continent has already disappeared. We may look forward with confidence for an early day when aerial weapons will be turned upon her own population."

The Times, according to an International News Service dispatch, publishes the following from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle: "Surely it is time that the German murders by Zeppelins should be dealt with more firmly. If a small avenging squadron of swift British aeroplanes were stationed in Eastern France and if it were announced by the government that every raid upon an open town in Great Britain would be automatically and remorselessly cause three similar raids on German towns, we should soon bring them to reason.

"I can well imagine our airmen find such work repugnant, but we must bear in mind that women and children for a long time have been sacrificed here and that all forbearance has been shown and that no other method but reprisal offers any assurance that we can save civilians from these murderous outrages."

Flight Lieutenant Lord, one of the best-known aviators in England, was killed in a single-handed combat with the Zeppelins.

According to spectators who witnessed the uneven duel between Zeppelin and aeroplane, Lord circled around his huge opponent three times, firing a machine gun. Tongues of flame spurted from the sides of the Zeppelin, but the German bullets missed their mark as Lord sizzagged and dodged. As he steadied his machine for a final fusilade the German gunners got the range.

The aeroplane crumpled up before the blast of bullets and dropped, a heap of wreckage, with the aviator beneath it, at the feet of the horrified spectators.

The British public is still unaware of the tragic end of Lord, so closely are incidents of this kind guarded by the censor.

ACCOUNTS CONFLICT.

Of the dead in the raid fourteen were soldiers, nine were women and five children. The injured include thirteen soldiers, sixty-four civilians, thirty women and seven children. The toll in casualties was the highest of any the Zeppelin raids on England. In all previous raids, 112 persons had been killed and 322 injured.

Berlin reports that the Woolwich Arsenal, the largest in the United Kingdom, was shelled by the Zeppelins and that all the raiding airships returned safely.

These statements are met by the official British report that no serious damage was caused to military works or material and that, while several fires were started by the bombs, the flames in each case were got under control quickly.

The Press Bureau states that anti-aircraft guns attached to the central force fired on the raiders and one of the airships was seen to heel over and drop to a lower level. Five aeroplanes of the Royal Corps rose to attack the Zeppelins, but on account of the fog were compelled to abandon the project.

At a public meeting the government has been urged to adopt aerial reprisals. Many spirited speeches were made by prominent citizens demanding the establishment of an aerial ministry.

"The only way to stop that kind of thing," said Lord Willoughby, who presided, "is to treat the Germans as they treat us. Otherwise we shall become the laughing stock of Europe."

William Joynson-Hicks, M. P., cried: "Let the Kaiser be made to realize what it means to his own people to be subjected to cold-blooded butchery in the dead of night. If this were done from one end of Germany to the other, there would be a demand that the butchery in England be stopped in order that they themselves may be safe.

"We must be prepared with 200 machines at least to circle over German towns in order to make the Germans realize the destruction they have wrought."

Resolutions were passed calling upon the government to act in reprisal.

The press is united in advocacy of this program. The London Globe says:

"The only way to hit the enemy is to strike as he strikes—to bombard his sleeping towns. The Zeppelin is practically immune against the ordinary weapons of warfare."

Bisons' Charge Routs a German Company

Boston American and London Times Exclusive Cable Service.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 15.—An extraordinary story reaches here of an encounter between a German company and a herd of bison near Bielovlesh. The bison and the soldiers met accidentally and regarded each other with mutual curiosity until a chance shot fired by one of the men roused the fury of the animals. They charged the soldiers, goring and trampling all in their path.

Only twenty of the soldiers escaped by flight, according to the story. On the side of the bison there were eight casualties.

KAISER GIVES UP CALAIS DRIVE; RUSSIANS SHELL BULGAR PORT

theory that sea power is the decisive influence upon the course of history.

SEA VS. LAND POWER.

"Mahanism or Moltkeism—that is the question.

"Are such land powers as Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria impotently at the mercy of England and Yankeeland, which stands behind her, simply because Great Britain at present still commands the sea; are the land powers strong enough to enforce their liberty and their future development?

"It will not be decided between the Danube and the Dardanelles, for behind the Dardanelles lies Egypt, but the decision will be brought nearer. If England wants war to the knife, she will have it. She can count upon that."

VARNA BOMBARDED.

A Russian fleet has bombarded the Bulgarian port of Varna on the Black Sea, according to a dispatch from Bucharest.

Four German submarines that had been taken to Varna overland are reported to have escaped into the Black Sea before the blockade began.

All Britain is waiting tensely today for an explanation of the government's attitude on the Dardanelles operations. The demand made in the House of Lords last night by Lord Milner that British troops be withdrawn from the Dardanelles, and Lord Lansdowne's refusal to state whether the Dardanelles operations would be continued or ended, caused a tremendous sensation.

The newspapers which oppose the present government declare that Sir Edward Grey's statement on the Balkan situation in the House of Commons yesterday was wholly unsatisfactory and they are expected to seize upon Lord Milner's prediction of disaster at the Dardanelles to further their attack.

ANXIETY OVER GREECE.

It is no longer concealed here that the attitude of Greece is causing the allies uneasiness. In Lord Landowne's reply to Lord Milner, he said the Greek attitude had not been fully defined, and that, he added, "is another factor in the calculation."

The withdrawal of the allied forces from the Dardanelles might be the last thing needed to make Greece decide to help Germany.

Italy cannot undertake to send troops to the Balkans at present, but will help the allies' cause in other ways, according to today's dispatches from Rome. The Giornale di Italia has made a statement to this effect in discussing the situation that has developed through Bulgaria's intervention in the war.

The announcement declares that there is a change of sentiment during the last few days. It was expected that following Premier Salandra's visit to King Victor Emmanuel at army headquarters, announcement would be made of the sending of an expeditionary force through Albania. It is possible that the determined offensive of the Austrian forces on the Italian frontier has caused the change in plans.

Though the Italian War Office states that the operations have resulted in no gains for the enemy, it is probably deemed necessary to keep all available troops ready for action.

MORE ALLIED TROOPS LAND.

Allied troops continue to land at Salonica, the French Ministry of Marine announced today. The following statement was issued:

"The transport and disembarkation of allied troops at Salonica continues under good conditions. The transport Provence, with General Sarrail, commander-in-chief of the French army in the Orient, arrived at Salonica on October 12."

The Geneva Tribune reports that the Serbians are inflicting terrific losses on the Germans, Austrians and Bulgarians in their triple invasion of Serb territory.

"On the Drina," it says, "the Serbs, having received reinforcements, repulsed the Austrians, inflicting enormous losses. Near Shabats the Serbs destroyed a German brigade, taking 1,000 prisoners.

"All Bulgarian attacks have been repulsed, the Serbs taking 2,000 prisoners."

VIENNA REPORTS VICTORY.

According to today's Austrian official report, however, Serbian troops which made a stand before the Austro-German advance southeast of Belgrade have been defeated in battle and are retreating eastward into the Avala Mountains.

Serb forts defending the railway lines southeast of Belgrade are being shelled by the big guns of the invaders. Especial mention of the effective work of the Austro-German heavy artillery is made in the Vienna announcement, which follows:

"We have advanced from Belgrade to the line of fortresses southeast of the city which stretch through Erinofbrdo, Cunak and Stawara. The enemy fled into the Avala mountains before our advance, having suffered heavy losses.

"Heavy artillery aided our successes. Our allies on the lower Mava are making progress. They have captured the forts defending Pasrevats on the western and northern and eastern sides."

HEAVY FIGHTING IN PROGRESS ON GALLIPOLI FRONT

By International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 15.—Fighting of great violence is in progress on the Gallipoli peninsula.

Heavy losses are being inflicted upon the Anglo-French allies, the Turkish War Office reports. A machine gun position was destroyed by the Turks near Ariburnu, and an allied aeroplane was shot down near Anafarta, on the northern side of the peninsula.

The text of the official report follows:

"Near Ariburnu we destroyed an enemy machine gun position and our left wing destroyed some trenches. Near Anafarta we sent down an aeroplane. A torpedo boat which was shelling Turkish positions on our left wing, near Lacrevrepere, was compelled by our artillery to withdraw. The enemy's losses are heavy."

For Heavy Meat Eaters

Meat causes uric acid and uric acid ruins the kidneys. Heavy meat eaters need not suffer, for two teaspoonfuls of rheumatasalts in a half glass of water before breakfast each morning will flush the kidneys and eliminate dangerous uric acid. A little rheumatasalts, to be had at any drug store, occasionally neutralizes irritating acids and keeps the kidneys clean and active.—Advertisement.

QUIT MEAT WHEN BACK HURTS OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Says Uric Acid in meat clogs Kidneys and irritates Bladder.

A glass of Salts is harmless way to flush Kidneys, says authority.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys. Also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advertisement.

SWAMP-ROOT SAVES KIDNEY SUFFERERS

You naturally feel secure when you know that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence, prescribed by Dr. Kilmer many years ago, is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

Swamp-Root is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for everything. According to verified testimony it is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

If you suffer, don't delay another day. Go to your nearest druggist now and get a bottle. All drug stores sell it in two sizes—fifty cents and one dollar.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention the Boston Daily American.—Advertisement.

COFFEE WHIPS UP AND CONSUMES RESERVE ENERGY

Investigators Declare Continued Use of Coffee Works Disaster to Nervous System.

"Does the daily use of coffee as a beverage, continued for a series of years, do harm?"

"Yes," says Dr. W. A. Evans in the Chicago Tribune, "A horse cannot be whipped daily for years without being harmed. A man cannot be nagged continually for years without being harmed. The very fact that, when fatigue is slowing down muscles and brain cells, coffee will whip them on, and that under the stimulation of coffee the working capacity is unduly excited, is proof that harm will come if the process is kept up for a series of years."

"Fatigue is a danger signal," adds another investigator. "It means that the weary body should immediately seek rest. Caffeine in any form puts a mask on this signal, and temporarily conceals it by whipping up the reserve forces and then consuming them.

"Fatigue is like a red light that calls attention to a ditch in the dark. Nobody with common sense would assume for a minute that by putting out the light the ditch would be removed. Yet that is exactly what weary people do when they disguise their weariness for an hour by resorting to stimulants."

NOTE—It is interesting to observe that as medical science more and more reveals the harmfulness of coffee to the health of both old and young there follows a tremendous increase in the use of the pure food beverage, POSTUM.

SHE H. RIDER HAGGARD'S MARVELOUS ROMANTIC TALE OF EXCITING ADVENTURE PUBLISHED IN FIVE INSTALMENTS

Synopsis of Previous Instalments.

Horace Holly, a Cambridge University scholar, and his ward, Leo Vincey, have come to Africa in quest of a mysterious tribe, ruled over by a beautiful white woman, who is reputed, in relics handed down to Leo by his father, to be an ever-living or reincarnated Queen who slew the Egyptian priest, Kallikrates, Vincey's ancestor, 2,000 years before.

According to the legend, the African Queen loved Kallikrates, who would not desert his own wife, Amenartas. After Kallikrates' death Amenartas escaped and gave birth to a boy. From him descended the Vincey family.

Holly, Leo Vincey and their servant, Job, sail for Africa, are cast ashore with one of their Arab crew, Mahomed, and are captured by subjects of "She-who-must-be-obeyed," ruler of the Amahagger.

Ustane, a beautiful girl of the savage tribe, loves Leo on sight and kisses him-in token of taking him for a husband. Leo returns the kiss.

Later the Amahagger, led by the woman Job had repulsed, tried to kill Mahomed by "hot-potting." This consists of dropping a red-hot earthenware pot over the head of the intended victim. In the terrific fight between the Englishmen and the Amahagger Mahomed is accidentally shot. Ustane shields Leo's body from a savage spear just as a voice cries "Cease!" (Holly tells the story.)

CHAPTER VI.
SHE.

WHEN I opened my eye again I found we had been saved by the timely return of Billali, who had come back with orders from She-who-must-be-obeyed that we be brought before her.

Twelve Amahaggers had fallen before us. Poor Mahomed's body was with theirs. The survivors of the band which had attacked us were bound by Billali's men.

Leo had received a nasty spear wound, but apparently not a dangerous one.

Leo, Job and I were borne in litters to the home of Ustane. Ustane also rode in a litter.

"Ustane saved Leo's life," Billali told me, "and she loves him. By our custom she has the right to wed him unless She says her nay."

"And if the girl refused to obey She?" I asked.

"If the hurricane bids the tree to bend and it will not," replied Billali significantly, "what happens?"

On the journey Leo became worse. His condition grew grave.

But we journeyed on and on until, many miles from the hot-potting cave, we came before a plain from which rose a splendid mountain, with a precipitous face, fifteen hundred feet high.

"Behold," said Billali, "the home of She-who-must-be-obeyed!"

A winding roadway led up, however, through the living rock. We were blindfolded until we were set down before a cave which evidently was the entrance to the abode of the mighty Queen.

We were taken into chambers furnished with couches and dressed skins. Leo was in a bad way, raving violently with fever. On Billali's order I made ready to go before She.

In an inner chamber, with rich hangings and a soft light, a curtain was suddenly agitated.

A most beautiful white hand appeared, with long tapering fingers and drew the curtain aside. A tall figure stood before us.

Wrapped in Soft White Gauzy Folds.

I say a figure, for not only her body, but also her face, was wrapped up in soft white gauzy material in such a way as at first sight to remind me most forcibly of a corpse in its grave-clothes. And yet I do not know why it should have given me that idea, seeing that the wrappings were so thin that one could distinctly see the gleam of the pink flesh beneath them. I suppose it was the way in which they were arranged, either accidentally, or more probably by design. Anyhow, I felt more frightened than ever at this ghost-like apparition, and my hair began to rise upon my head as the feeling crept over me that I was in the presence of something that was not canny. The swathed mummy-like form before me was that of a tall and lovely woman, instinct with beauty in every part, and also with a certain snake-like grace that I have never seen anything like before. When she moved a hand or foot her entire frame seemed to undulate; and the neck did not bend, it curved.

"Why art thou so frightened, stranger?" asked the sweet voice again—a voice that seemed to draw the heart out of me like the strains of softest music. "Is there that about me that should affright a man? Then surely are men changed from what they used to be." And with a little coquettish movement she turned herself and held up one arm, so as to show all her loveliness, and the rich hair of raven blackness that streamed in soft ripples down her snowy robes, almost to her sandaled feet.

"It is thy beauty that makes me fear, oh, Queen," I answered humbly.

She asked Billali about the fight, demanding why her guests had been set upon. Billali in terror explained that the Amahagger did not know that She's protection extended to the black man, Mahomed, and they merely sought to follow the ancient hot-potting custom. She dismissed Billali, saying punishment would be meted out to the offenders.

Then She led me into an inner recess, learned my name and talked strangely of centuries ago, of the ancient Greeks and Arabs and the Messiah who came in her time.

"How can a woman live two thousand years?" I asked.

"I tell thee that naught really dies, She retorted, "I have even overcome that change ye call death."

In a vessel of water she made me gaze. I saw revealed there pictures of our mishaps on our journey.

Still She had not shown her face to me.

"I am for no man, save one," She said, "who hath been, but is not yet. But, if thou wilt, Oh, rash man, have thy will, but do not blame me if passion mount thy reason. Say, will thou see?"

Her Long Wrappings Fell From Her.

"I will," I answered, my curiosity overpowering me.

She lifted her white and rounded arms—never had I seen such arms before—and slowly, very slowly, withdrew some fastening beneath her hair. Then all of a sudden the long corpse-like wrappings fell from her, and my eyes traveled up her form, now only robed in a garb of clinging white that did but serve to show its perfect and imperial shape, instinct with a life that was more than life, and with a certain serpent-like grace that was more than human. On her little feet were sandals, fastened with studs of gold. Then came ankles more perfect than ever sculptor dreamed of. About the waist her white kirtle was fastened by a double-headed snake of solid gold, above which her gracious form swelled up in lines as pure as they were lovely, till the kirtle ended on the snowy argent of her breast, whereon her arms were folded. I gazed above them at her face, and—I do not exaggerate—shrunk back blinded and amazed. I have heard of the beauty of celestial beings; now I saw it; only this beauty, with all its loveliness and purity, was evil—at least, at the time, it struck me as evil. How am I to describe it? I can not—simply, I can not. The man does not live whose pen could convey a sense of what I saw. I might talk of the great changing eyes of deepest, softest black, of the tinted face, of the broad and noble brow, on which the hair grew low, and delicate, straight features. But, beautiful, surpassing beautiful as they all were, her loveliness did not lie in them. It lay rather, if it can be said to have any fixed abiding-place, in a visible majesty, in an imperial grace, in a god-like stamp of softened power, that shone upon that radiant countenance like a living halo. Never before had I guessed what beauty made sublime could be, and yet the sublimity was a dark one, the glory was not all heaven, though none the less was it glorious. Though the face before me was that of a young woman in perfect health and the first flush of ripened beauty, yet it had stamped upon it a look of unutterable experience, and of deep acquaintance with grief and passion. Not even the lovely smile that crept about the dimples of her mouth could hide this shadow of sin and sorrow. It shone even in the light of the glorious eyes, it was present in the air of majesty, and it seemed to say: "Behold me, lovely as no woman was or is, undying and half divine. Memory haunts me from age to age, and passion leads me by the hand. Evil have I done, and with sorrow have I made acquaintance from age to age, and from age to age evil I shall do, and sorrow I know till my redemption comes."

She laughed—ah, how musically! and nodded her little head at me with an air of sublimated coquetry that would have done credit to a Venus Victrix.

"Rash man," she said; "like Acteon, thou hast had thy will; be careful lest, like Actaeon, thou too dost perish miserably, torn to pieces by the ban-hounds of thine own passions. I too, oh Holly, am a virgin goddess, not to be moved of any man, save one, and it is not thou. Say, hast thou seen enough?"

"I have looked on beauty and I am blinded," I said, I stumbled from her presence and I do not remember how I reached my own cave.

CHAPTER VII.
The Curse of She.

WAS I mad, or drunk or dreaming? How could I have talked with a woman two thousand years old? She had warned me fairly. I had refused to take her warning and had gazed upon her. Curses on the fatal curiosity that ever prompts man to draw the veil from woman, I, at my age, to fall a victim to this modern Circe!

Could Leo be the man she was waiting for? Could it be that the whole story was true, as on the pot-sherd, or merely crack-brained gibberish?

She had seen Ustane in the water-picture. She had inquired about the girl. I had told her she merely watched Leo asleep.

I went to Leo's side. He was restless in fever, but asleep. Ustane leaned in slumber against his stone couch.

Leo was very ill. If he died, I would be left alone here. Yet, if he lived, he might be my rival against Ayesha—as She-who-must be-obeyed was also known to the Amahagger.

I strode up and down my chamber like a finally walking along through a tunnel or passage I found leading from it. This passage turned into another and I came out at the entrance of still another chamber.

I was at the curtains, and they did not hang close, so I could see clearly into the little cavern beyond it. I had all the appearance of being a tomb, and was lit up by a fire that burned in its centre with a whitish flame and without smoke. Over the fire bent the figure of a woman.

It was She herself.

She was clothed, as I had seen her when she unveiled, in the kirtle of clinging white, cut low upon her bosom, and bound in at the waist with the barbaric double - headed snake, and, as before, her rippling black hair fell in heavy masses down her back. But her face was what caught my eye, and held me as a vise, not this time by the force of her beauty, but by the power of fascinated terror. The beauty was still there, indeed, but agony, the blind passion, and the awful vindictiveness displayed upon those quivering features, and in the tortured look of the upturned eyes, were such as surpass my powers of description.

For a moment she stood still, her hands raised high above her head, and as she did so the white robe slipped from her down to her golden girdle, baring the blinding loveliness of her form. She stood there, her fingers clinched, and the awful look of malevolence gathered and deepened on her face.

Down came the clinched hands to her sides, then up again above her head, and, as I am a living and honorable man, the flame of the fire leaped up after them, almost to the roof, throwing a fierce and vivid glare upon She herself, upon the white figure beneath the covering and every scroll and detail on its rocky work.

Down came the ivory arms again and as they did so she spoke, or rather hissed, in Arabic, in a note that curdled my blood, and for a second stopped my heart.

"Curse her! may she be overtaken by evil!"

The arms fell and the flames sunk. Up they went again, and the brazen tongue of fire shot up after them, then again they fell.

"Curse her memory! accursed be the memory of the Egyptian!"

Up again, and again down.

"Curse her, the fair daughter of the Nile, because of her beauty!

"Curse her! because her magic has prevailed against me.

"Curse her! because she kept my beloved from me."

Again the flame fell, and again she covered her eyes with her hands.

"It's no use—no use," she wailed; "who can reach those who sleep? Not even I can reach them."

Then once more she began her unholy rites:

"Curse her when she shall be born again! Let her be born accursed!

"Let her be utterly accursed, let then shall I overtake her with my vengeance, and utterly destroy her!"

I could hear no more. I fled back to my chamber.

CHAPTER VIII.
The Beauty of She.

IN the morning Leo was in critical condition. Ustane was frantic with grief and worry.

Seeing by Billali I went out in front of the main cave to see She administer justice upon our assailants.

She came veiled before her prostrate people. The terrified ples of the leader of the hot-potters availed them not. They were condemned to the torturers, and, whoever survived, to the final hot-potting themselves.

Billali brought me word that Leo could not live long. I was heavy-hearted.

I was called before Ayesha, or She, again. She received me veiled. I wondered if she suspected I had seen her cursing the spirit of the dead Amenartas.

"How didst thou sleep, my Holly?" she asked.

"I slept not well, oh Ayesha!" I answered, with perfect truth, and with an inward fear that perhaps she knew being done, and the wise sadness of the tombs—cast them off and put them behind her, like the white shroud she wore, and now stood out the incarnation of lovely tempting womanhood, made more perfect—and in a way more spiritual —than ever woman was before.

I could stand it no longer. Then and there I fell upon my knees before her, and told her in a sad mixture of languages—for such moments confuse the thoughts—that I worshiped her as never woman was worshiped, and that I would give my immortal soul to marry her—which at that time I certainly would have done, and so, indeed, would any other man, or all the race of men rolled into one. For the moment she looked a little surprised, and then she began to laugh, and clap her hands in glee.

Another instalment of "She" will be printed in tomorrow's Boston AMERICAN.

I WEAR

Brown's Beach Jacket

It keeps me warm as toast in the coldest weather; is warmer than a wool sweater, comes longer, coats low, and won't spoil your coat. Is warm and soft and but extends from neck to end and wind; it fits snugly, but doesn't bind. Middle of the back material is the wearer's best, and it won't rawl. Will stand hard usage and is One Garment for all outdoor men who don't mind to be different.

Jacket without collar costs $2.50; jacket with collar, $2.75; vest, $1.50. Will mail on receipt of price if your dealer hasn't it.

If you wear my jacket I would like to know what you think of it. Write me. Send for Catalog No. 17.

ABERDEEN HEALTH FUND FOR IRELAND STARTS WITH $600

In response to the pathetic appeal of Lord and Lady Aberdeen now in our city, in behalf of the child welfare and health campaign that they are vigorously conducting in Ireland, a fund, "The Lady Aberdeen Irish Civic Fund," has been started in this city. Subscriptions are invited and should be sent to John Heyer, vice-president of the Federal Trust Company, Boston, Mass.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen will on Saturday morning be at the E. T. Slattery Company's store, No. 135 Tremont street with samples of Irish laces and Irish tweeds made by girls and women of Ireland.

This exhibition will be in the Louis VI. room on the fourth floor from 10:30 to 11:45. Any orders taken at that time, and any Irish laces sold, will be a benefit to this fund, as the proceeds will be given to the fund.

Both the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen will at this exhibition be glad to explain the Irish home making industry in which they are so much interested.

Yesterday the final affair of the many social events that Lord and Lady Aberdeen have had tendered them since their arrival here last Sunday, took place in the grand ball room of the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

GUESTS AT TEA.

The members of the women's council committee that has been co-operating with the men, had charge of the tea and reception yesterday, to 600 prominent men and women the city were present. It was one of the most brilliant affairs that has been given at the Copley-Plaza for some time.

Assisting in receiving with the Marquis and Marchioness from 4 until 7, were Mrs. P. A. O'Connell, Mrs. W. W. Taft, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair; Mrs. T. J. Falvey, Mrs. James J. Phelan, Mrs. E. C. Fogg, Mrs. James M. Curley, Mrs. T. B. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. James Dwight and Mrs. John Noles.

The ushers were all Harvard men, led by Leo J. Leary. Assisting Coach for her Harvard football star were Mrs. L. O'Riorden, William V. Ellis, Francis W. Loomis, Harry P. Nawn, Jr., John C. Day, John C. Heyer, Joseph F. O'Connell, John W. Casey and Jerome C. Linnehan. An orchestra and quartette assisted in the reception.

Mrs. Taft made an eloquent address, introducing Lady Aberdeen, who spoke briefly on her work in the interests of better civic conditions in Ireland and the changes that have been accomplished in the last ten years.

WILL TOKE PARK TODAY.

Today Lord and Lady Aberdeen will be the guests of William B. de las Casas, chairman of the Metropolitan Park Commission, and Charles Gibson of the City Park Department. The distinguished visitors will be taken to the playgrounds and through the park system in the afternoon, and will also visit the Forsyth Dental Infirmary for children in the Fenway. Thomas Forsyth, the donor of this institution to the city, will be present to welcome his friends, who are much interested in its work for children.

At 8 o'clock tonight Lord Aberdeen will speak before the Harvard students at the Harvard Union. He holds a very high honorary degree from Harvard.

Over $600 has been so far subscribed to the Lady Aberdeen Irish Civic Fund. The following subscriptions were received yesterday:

Joseph Jobs	$100
Cardinal O'Connell	100
Mme. Jeanne M. Curie	100
Jas. B. Fitzpatrick	100
Jos. F. Tomasello	100
Boston Herald-Traveler Company	100
Total	$600

Count de Vogue Is Slain in Battle

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Count Henri de Vogue, son of the late Viscount Melchior de Vogue, is dead from wounds received in battle.

Refuses to Pay for Permission to Marry Girl

Biogio Coppola of Quincy, in the Quincy court today, said he would give his daughter Anna to Rocco Gingranterio in marriage if the latter would pay the cost of the girl's passage from Italy to Boston.

The girl was in court as a stubborn child, and Rocco was charged with abduction.

"I picked a young man I know to be her husband and I paid $40 to bring her to America," Coppola told the court. "Recently she eloped with Gingranterio, and I will let them marry if he will pay me $40, the sum it cost me for her trip across the ocean."

Rocco said he would not pay, and Judge Avery threatened to fine him $50, but later continued the case until Oct. 26.

According to the police the young couple took out a marriage license.

Treasury Replaces Money Fire Burned

Through the efforts of Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Ward 20, Lawrence Corbett, who lost $4 in the Homer avenue, Dorchester, fire of several weeks ago, and who saved the partly burned bills and the ashes the United States Treasury Department at Washington has reimbursed him that amount after it had been ascertained that the burned bills and ashes were genuine. The letter was sent to the department by Representative Sullivan, and today he showed four crisp dollar bills he had received in return for Corbett.

Falls 50 Feet and Breaks Both Legs

Benjamin Waters of Boston, an employe of the Boston Brick Building Company, fell fifty feet while at work on a new building in the yards of the Fore River Iron Works. He is at the Quincy City Hospital with his right arm and both legs broken.

CONTROVERSY IS SETTLED, SAYS BERNSTORFF

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Count Johann von Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States, announced today that the submarine issue between the Washington and Berlin governments had been completely cleared up and that no further notes would be exchanged.

"The exchange of notes by the United States and Germany on the submarine affair is at an end," said the Ambassador. "Everything has been arranged satisfactorily to both countries, and nothing but the most friendly relations now exists between German and American officials. I am very happy over the present state of affairs, and I am very positive it will continue—for all time, I hope."

"How about the answer on the Lusitania note?" he was reminded.

"The exchange of notes on the submarine question, as I said before, has been completed," the ambassador reiterated.

"Now nothing remains but a confidential conference between Secretary Lansing and myself," he continued. "I shall leave for Washington the middle of the latter part of next week, and shall arrange to see Mr. Lansing as soon as I arrive there."

"Then all tension has passed?" he was asked.

"Indeed, yes. There is no tension whatever over the matter now. There is no trouble at all. The most peaceful feeling of brotherly love now exists between the two countries.

"There is nothing to be done but make formal arrangement for the paying of indemnities to the United States. Germany has made disavowal, the apology, and the offer of indemnity. Everything will be arranged satisfactorily."

Got a Bad Wound? Just Feed It Sugar

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Brown sugar is the best dressing that can be obtained for neglected wounds, according to Dr. J. M. Miller, division surgeon of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad.

KAPLAN PILOTS HIS CAPTORS IN AUTO

Edward J. Kaplan of Worcester, at the wheel of an automobile he is accused of stealing, arrived in the city early today, bringing with him Special Officers Van Laninghani and Trayers. He delivered his charges to Captain Sullivan of the Court square station, and was warmly commended for his efforts in returning the two policemen safely to the city, after which he was escorted to a cell.

When the automobile left Worcester the two policemen were in charge of Kaplan. Van Laningham was at the wheel. Fate interfered with this arrangement, and when the auto reached Boston the prisoner was at the wheel instead of in charge of the policemen.

On leaving Worcester all went well until the auto struck a newly oiled piece of road while going down a steep hill in Shrewsbury. Here the machine skidded, and fearing for their lives Trayers started to jump from one side of the car and Kaplan the other. As they were handcuffed together this plan failed, and while they were trying to agree on which side to jump from, the machine struck a tree and stopped in a ditch. Wing spokes were knocked out of one wheel and sundry other damage was done.

Kaplan then offered to repair the auto and pilot it to the city. His offer was accepted and thus it was that the prisoner returned his captors to Boston.

Rich Woman Admits Stealing Antiques

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Belle S. Newell of Cromwell, wife of Walter E. Newell, one of the wealthiest merchants of Middlesex county, has admitted that she had robbed the Summer homes of two New Britain residents of valuable antiques.

"I'm guilty, yes. I broke into the houses because I felt I must have these pieces," sobbed Mrs. Newell at the Middletown police station.

Edison Leaves for Panama Exposition

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Thomas A. Edison has left for the San Francisco Exposition for a long vacation for him. He expects to return November 1. Accompanying the inventor were Mrs. Edison and their sons, Charles and Theodore. They will be the guests of honor at the fair next Thursday, Edison Day.

Bostonians—and Yet They Didn't Know Lansing!

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15. — A party of six from the Home of Real Culture and Learning—Boston—visited the State, War and Navy Building today.

Entering the Secretary of State's office, they expressed a desire to sit for a moment in that dignitary's chair.

"By the way," said one, "who is the Secretary of State now?"

"Why, Garrison, of course," answered another in the party.

"No, it's not; it's Tumulty," volunteered a third.

A fourth came to the rescue. "It's a man named Lansing," he said.

Man Ill in Street, Dies in Hospital

While crossing the street at Scollay Square and Cornhill, early today, a man was struck by an auto. He was hurried to the hospital, where he died, probably from heart failure. There were many pencil notes in the man's pocket, in the name John J. Sweeney, No. 197A West Ninth street. The man is described as being about sixty years old, weighing about 160 pounds and five feet, eight inches in height. He wore a blue suit and the end of the index finger on his right hand was missing.

A QUICK, SURE WAY TO END CATARRH

Wonderful Medicated Air Quickly Kills the Germs and Makes Your Stuffed, Catarrhal Head Clear as a Bell.

Catarrh is caused by a germ and these germs thrive far up in the passages of your nose, throat and lungs where no medicine or ointment can get at them. Before you can get rid of Catarrh you must get rid of the germs which cause it. The best way to kill catarrh germs and drive them from the system is to breathe up into the nose, throat and lungs the pleasant smelling but powerful medicated germicidal air called Hyomei, which is formed by combining the pure healing oil of Eucalyptus with powerful germicides and healing agents that utterly destroy every catarrh germ they reach. You breathe Hyomei for a few minutes through the little pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit. Hard noses and throat troubles go first and then the cough. All leading druggists furnish with the complete outfit. This penetrating air not only kills the germs, but it soothes and heals the sore, swollen, inflamed membranes, stops the dreadful dropping, hawking, etc., clears up the head and air passages and makes breathing easy again. Breathe it five minutes and you'll get blessed relief. Breathe Hyomei a few minutes daily for just a few weeks and every trace and symptom of catarrh will vanish. You don't have to wait, as you would for Catarrh cures that must be taken and most of the healing begins in the victim's hacks it up by absolutely guaranteeing to refund your money if you do not get from it the relief you're seeking. Hyomei is pleasant and easy to use. You'll like it. And it certainly does put a stop to Catarrh as nothing else will or can.—Advertisement.

Grant Hotel Death Case Continuance

Theodore Semon, sometimes known as "Teddy the Cabman," appeared before Judge Creed in the municipal court today, charged with the murder of Johanna E. Donovan of Lynn. He was represented by the office of Harvey H. Pratt. A continuance was granted until October 24, and Semon was remanded to jail. Miss Donovan was found dead with a cord around her neck in a room at a West End hotel last Tuesday.

SUMMER WHITE HOUSE TO BE IN JERSEY

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—President Wilson today accepted the invitation of a committee of prominent New Jersey Democrats to spend his vacation next Summer in that State. It was formally announced that the mansion formerly owned by the late John A. McCall near Long Branch, N. J., would be the "Summer White House" in 1916.

Representative Scully headed the visiting delegation and delivered the invitation speech. He declared that the people of New Jersey "having given the nation the greatest President it ever had, wants him back with them a while."

In replying the President said he would gladly accept the invitation, but with one reservation. He insisted that he be allowed to pay for renting the home. He said he could not feel right, otherwise.

The delegation had stated that the people of New Jersey would pay for his residence there.

The President laughingly told the delegation that they could assure Governor Fielder that he wouldn't go near the camp. He was referring to the National Guard camp at Seagirt. The members of the delegation smiled and the joke was later explained. Three years ago the President was at the National Guard camp and while wearing a frock coat and a silk hat reviewed the troops on horseback. Today he said that he did not object to riding, but that he did object to doing so while wearing such an attire as three years ago.

ANTIS PLAN COUP TO OFFSET THE SUFFRAGE PARADE

Miss Harriet Brigham of Brookline, chief marshal of the suffrage parade. She will ride one of her own blooded horses.

A "rose demonstration" against Votes for Women is the coup planned by the anti-suffragists in tomorrow's Victory Parade.

Miss Harriet Brigham of Brookline will be chief marshal. She has full charge of the preparations and will head the parade on one of her own beautiful horses.

The 15,000 suffragists who will march in the parade will have to pass by 100 houses which will be decorated with red roses, the symbol of the anti-suffragists.

All along the line of march the members of the different Votes for Women organizations will see the symbol of their rival organization displayed.

Hundreds of banners urging men to vote against the cause of suffrage will also meet the eyes of the marchers. These banners will be displayed at many prominent places along the line of march.

Motor cars decorated with red roses will be operated by Antis over the streets on which the suffragists will parade. Hotel maids and matrons will sell roses, and with each will give away a card bearing an argument against "Woman Suffrage." On the streets hundreds of boys have been engaged to sell the Antis' colors.

By these means the Antis intend to answer the suffrage appeal for votes through the gigantic parade. No attempt will be made to interrupt the marchers in any way. The Antis are sure that their silent campaign will accomplish more than the suffrage parade.

More than 100,000 silent, blushing roses have been ordered from Boston florists and hundreds of others have been made of paper. These will be distributed throughout the city today. The proceeds of the sale of roses will be used to open a ward in the Boston Infants' Hospital.

They vary in size from simple buds, that sell for five cents each and are made of cotton, to voluptuous, full-blown blooms, made of fine silk, that sell at $1 each.

Each of the smaller roses is placed in a neat box, like a wedding-cake box, together with a card giving some argument on why women should not vote.

The Suffragists today sent out instructions for getting the marchers into line.

The parade will start at Beacon and Charles streets and will end at Mechanics Building, where a mass meeting will be held.

Governor Walsh and his staff and members of the Governor's Council will review the parade at the State House, while Mayor Curley, Mrs. Curley and members of the city government will occupy the reviewing stand at City Hall.

DENIES SON WAS COMPANION OF BORSTEL

Mrs. Effie Jacobson, mother of Harry Davidson of No. 92 Devon street, Dorchester, today denied that her son is or has been a companion of Alexander Borstel, who is under arrest, charged with knowledge of the origin of the recent Dorchester fires.

"My son does not know the Borstel boy at all," says Mrs. Jacobson. "On the night of the fire, my son, Harry, was in the house, with the people on the floor below. He heard the cry of 'fire,' and being a boy he got out of the house ahead of the rest of the family, who also went to the fire.

"I was in the house when someone called 'fire,' and I ran out of the house and went to the fire," says Harry Davidson. "When I got there, there was an auto on the opposite side of the street, near the house. There were two men in it.

"As I approached a man came from the direction of the burning house and jumped into the auto. Then the auto started off. I was telling another boy about it when Patrolman Donovan overheard me. Later I went to the station and was questioned by the police. I do not know Alexander Borstel and never saw him before."

EAT BIG MEALS! NO INDIGESTION OR BAD STOMACH

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes weak stomachs strong and healthy at once.

Instantly stops sourness, gases, heartburn, acidity, dyspepsia.

There would not be a case of indigestion or dyspepsia here if readers who are subject to stomach trouble knew the tremendous antiferment and digestive virtue contained in Pape's Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly overcomes indigestion and removes such symptoms as heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, belching of gas and eructations of undigested food, water brash, acidity, nausea, headache, biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and besides, one case is sufficient to rid a whole family of sour stomach.

Surely a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

CHILDREN HATE PILLS, CALOMEL AND CASTOR OIL

Give Fruit Laxative when cross, bilious, feverish or constipated.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartic. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it, and it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

4 BATTLESHIPS AT NAVY YARD FOR REPAIRS

The battleships Virginia, flagship of Rear-Admiral De Witt Coffman, commander of the third division of the Atlantic fleet, and in command of Captain Richard H. Jackson; the New Jersey, Captain Joseph L. Jayne; the Nebraska, Captain Guy H. Burrage, and the Georgia, Captain Joseph H. Orman, arrived today at the Charlestown navy yard from Hampton roads.

The ships will remain here for minor repairs about fifteen days and then 2,000 men will be given shore duty also.

B. & M. Place Order for Steel Passenger Cars

The Boston & Maine Railroad has decided to begin the purchase of steel passenger cars on its lines. To this end contracts have been awarded to the Pullman Company for six seventy-foot vestibule coaches and two seventy-foot vestibule smokers from the Pullman Company, and six sixty-foot blind-end baggage cars from the Laconia Car Company.

These will be the first all-steel passenger train cars to be bought by the Boston & Maine, with the exception of sixteen mail cars bought and placed in its service some time ago.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Riker-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Ensorol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

COL. HOUSE MAY BE THE BEST MAN AT PRESIDENT'S WEDDING

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—While the arrival at the White House of Colonel E. M. House of New York, closest friend of President Wilson, who has been spoken of as the probable best man of the Chief Executive when he marries Mrs. Norman Galt, the impression was deepened today that the wedding date will be very soon.

President Wilson and Colonel House were entertained at dinner by Mrs. Galt and her mother, Mrs. W. H. Bolling. The other guests were: Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, the Misses Smith and Dr. Cary Grayson.

Mr. Tumulty, the President's secretary, had a conference with the society editor of local and out-of-town papers as to the best methods of reporting the coming ceremony and the social events to be held at the White House during the season. Carpenters, painters and decorators are polishing up the interior of the White House and there are other evidences of preparations for the reception of the newly-weds.

It has become known that Mrs. Galt is designing most of her hats and gowns for her trousseau. The more elaborate ones are being made by a well-known Washington modiste, while many intended for informal and morning wear at the White House are being evolved by the seamstresses now at work under Mrs. Galt's direction at home.

From sources close to the President and to Mrs. Galt it is learned that they hold widely different views regarding the time and place for their coming marriage. Mrs. Galt has shown her complete readiness to accept the Presbyterian ceremony and be married either in the President's church on Sixteenth street or at her home on Twentieth street, with the President's pastor officiating.

Brockton High Master Wars on Cigarettes

BROCKTON, Oct. 15.—Pupils at the Brockton High School are answerable to the school authorities from the time they leave home for school and until they have returned to their homes after school session, as well as while they are at school, according to an edict against cigarette smoking issued by Headmaster Merle S. Getchell.

Boys must abstain from cigarette smoking while they are pupils at the school, is the order he has given. He announced that they may be punished for an infraction of this rule, or any other, while on the way home or to school. He requests the boys not to be in the company of others who are smoking tobacco, because their clothes may become saturated with tobacco smoke, thus causing annoyance to those who abhor tobacco.

FIERCE FIGHT AT CLOSE RANGE IN ARTOIS

By CHARLES P. BERTELLI.
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Sharp conflicts, in which the opposing French and German forces used hand grenades in the trenches, occurred last night in the Artois district, the War Office announced today. The artillery duels, which were reported yesterday, also continued during the night, both sides using their heavy guns.

The War Office issued the following communique:

"In the Artois district a violent bombardment, in which both sides engaged, continued during the night, before Loos and to the northeast of Souchez.

"Some sharp combats with grenades in the trenches to the south of Roisen-Hache were also reported. There was an intense cannonade on both sides in the sector of Lihons, as well as between the Oise and the Aisne in the region of Puisaleine, of Quennevieres, and on the plateau of Vouvron.

"In Champagne, our batteries responded very energetically to a concentrated fire from the enemy's artillery upon our positions to the east of Auberive.

"On the Lorraine front our checking fire and our curtains of fire arrested a violent fire from the artillery, the infantry and the machine guns of the Germans, before Metrincourt. We furthermore directed effective fire on the enemy's works to the north of Reillon.

"In the Vosges there was a very violent conflict with engines of trench warfare in the environs of La Chapelotte, northeast of Badonviller, and on the summit of Linge and of Barrenkopf.

"A violent cannonade occurred at Hartmannsweiler-kopf and in the surrounding region."

Deer Hunter Fires at Woman, Misses

HAMPTON, N. H., Oct. 15.—While picking cranberries near her home on the Exeter road, Mrs. L. E. Toppan was mistaken for a deer by a hunter, who fired two shots at her. Poor marksmanship was all that saved her life. One bullet went close to her head as she was stooping over and as she arose the second one whizzed past her body. She screamed and the gunner, realizing his mistake, made his escape in the woods.

RESOURCES OF ALLIES POOLED, SAYS RUSSIA

By the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 15.—The Russian Ministry of Finance has issued the following statement:

"An exchange of views between the Ministers of Finance of the allied powers has confirmed once again, according to information received at the Ministry of Finance, the accord between the governments of Russia, Great Britain and France, who have determined to unite all their resources to bring the present war to a victorious conclusion.

"Russia is assured that the necessary credits for the liquidation of orders placed for purposes of national defence, as well as for the payment of interest on the sinking fund upon foreign loans to the government guaranteed by the state and people of Russia—difficulties which have hitherto hindered the payment of the allied orders in America—probably have been adjusted by the credit provided by the Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000 and other measures contemplated by the allied governments.

"At the same time an agreement has been concluded with the British and French Ministers, and an agreement has been reached between the Bank of England and the Russian Ministry of Finance enabling Russian banks enjoying short-term credits to increase their drafts upon British financial houses. The principal object of this late measure is to enable Russian bankers to retain possession of their foreign securities."

AUSTRIANS REPORT AN ADVANCE ON THE ITALIAN FRONT

By International News Service.

VIENNA, Oct. 15.—A gain for the Austrians in the Italian theatre of war is reported in the following official statement issued by the Austrian War Office today:

"Our positions on the plateau of La Fraun, on the plateau of Ireleruts and on the plateau of Doloretten were shelled by the Italians.

"On the coast front we have advanced beyond the Italian trenches at Wavorcek. Two Italian attacks against our positions at Mrail (Monte Nero) were repulsed."

LAKE STEAMSHIP LINE IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 15.—The Graham & Morton Steamship line was placed in the hands of a receiver today, Federal Judge Sessions, appointing the Michigan Trust Company receiver. The line, according to the petition for a receiver is solvent, having approximately $400,000 liabilities with assets of $1,450,000.

The reasons recited in the petition on that following the Eastland steamship disaster in Chicago in July, water travel fell off so seriously as to reduce the company's revenue and this was followed by poor fruit crops in Michigan.

PRESIDENT PUTS IN BUSY DAY ON ESTIMATES

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—This was estimate day at the White House. President Wilson spent hours wrestling with the problem of how to best spend millions and even billions of dollars. Secretary of the Navy Daniels called and discussed the navy appropriation estimate and was soon followed by Secretary of the Interior Lane and Attorney General Gregory, who were also with the chief executive a short time on similar missions.

SERUM FAILS TO SAVE ANTHRAX PATIENT

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—George F. Stackpole, the aged lawyer, who has been suffering from anthrax at Bellevue Hospital, died early today, after waging a long fight against death.

His heart had been weakened by his illness and he passed away a few hours after the attending physicians had announced that the serum treatment in his case had conquered the dread anthrax.

Mr. Stackpole was conscious almost until the end and met death with the same unperturbed courage and faith which he showed when physicians told him before the serum was used that he probably could not live.

He began to sink late last night owing to his age and the strain of his illness, though a blood test had showed a remarkable decrease in the anthrax bacilli.

MILL OWNER'S SON BRINGS SECOND DIVORCE SUIT

First photograph ever published of Mrs. Frederick B. Thayer, who is being sued for the second time for divorce by her husband, son of the wealthy Oxford mill owner.

WORCESTER, Oct. 15.—Frederick B. Thayer, son of Frederick Thayer, the wealthy Oxford mill owner, has brought a second divorce suit against his wife, who at the time of their elopement some years ago was employed in one of his father's mills.

Thayer is living on Wellington street, while Mrs. Thayer, who is supporting herself by work in a Worcester factory, lives in Newbury terrace.

The two were married in 1912, when Thayer was twenty-one and the girl seventeen. They eloped to Providence. After their marriage they went to Seattle for a time, then returned and lived in apparently friendly relations with his parents.

Five years ago, however, they separated.

Mrs. Thayer said today: "I still love Fred; and I shall fight this suit and clear myself as I did when he sued me before.

WALL STREET IS NEW 'GREAT WHITE WAY'

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—New York has a new Great White Way. It's the Wall street district. In ordinary times it is dark and gloomy at nightfall. Now it gleams with brilliant lights on every hand. All night long brilliant lights shine in the skyscrapers where brokers have their offices. Night and day shifts are working.

The street is money-mad. Brokers and clerks drop at their posts in the wild scramble for wealth. Wall street has never been so busy in its history. It is a poor day when less than 1,000,000 shares are sold.

Everybody in the district shares in the prosperity. Restaurants which ordinarily bid for the noon trade and close before dusk are now a-glitter with glaring electric light signs reading: "We are open all night." In the old days the clerks kept at work were allowed 50 cents to $1 for meals. Now the program is to have waiters go from desk to desk asking the gentlemen to make their choice from elaborate French menus.

No one knows how long it will last, but while the golden flood is running the new white light district is the most picturesque part of New York.

Twelve Islands Occupied.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The Tageblatt published a report that the Italians have occupied twelve islands in the eastern Mediterranean, in connection with the new developments in the Balkans.

BOSTON LAWYER ARGUES ON INCOME TAX

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—That the corporate indebtedness of this country is in excess of $25,000,000,000 and that much of the interest paid upon this sum would escape taxation were it not for the collection-at-the-source feature of the income tax act, was argued by counsel for the government in winding up their defence of the act, in the Supreme Court today.

Arguments in five cases involving disputed portions of the act, which were begun yesterday, were concluded. The collection-at-the-source feature of the act was justified partly on the ground that it was a public necessity.

That Great Britain has this feature in its law and that the procedure is much more onerous and complicated was told to the court by the government lawyer.

Charles A. Snow of Boston, closing the argument for the mining companies, which have attacked the provision in the law limiting them to 5 per cent. of their output in reckoning the amount of deduction they may make for ordinary expenses, said that the act disclosed an intention to place a tax on capital as well as income. This would be unconstitutional, he declared.

Emden Executive in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The arrival here of Lieutenant-Commander Julius Lauterbach, who was executive officer of the German cruiser Emden, is announced by the Overseas News Agency.

HEALTHY WOMEN MOST BEAUTIFUL

Signed Testimonial of Mrs. F. M. Darling Proves the Contention.

Health certainly means all in all to women—beauty, success and happiness—everything. The difference between an unhealthy woman and her healthy sister is easily discernible. The one is anaemic, pale, white-lipped, thin-cheeked, with dull eyes, with a drooping figure and lack-lustre hair. The other is a joy to all beholders, full figured, rosy-cheeked, with bright eyes and skin like satin. Her lips are ruddy; her movements graceful and she is full of life and spirits. Plant Juice has done more to restore strength and health to women than all the tonics where it has been introduced that any other preparation ever placed on the market, and the thousands of beautiful women you daily see on the streets of Boston have but one agent to thank for their beauty—health. For instance, the statement recently received from Mrs. F. M. Darling, who resides at No. 58 Catawba Street, Roxbury, bears out this contention.

MRS. F. M. DARLING.

"I have suffered from catarrh of the stomach and bowels for years, which caused indigestion and dyspepsia. My food fermented and I had a poor appetite. What little I did eat turned sour in my stomach. For 12 days I was in a hospital and had my stomach pumped out, but received no benefit. I was sallow and my eyes were yellow; my liver was torpid and I suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. I began to use your medicine and I wish to state, for the benefit of other women, that I am now feeling like a new woman. I can eat any kind of food and do not have an ache or pain. My complexion is all cleared up, and the yellow color has disappeared from my eyes. I am recommending Plant Juice to all of my friends, for it is a perfect beautifier."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Co.'s Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

The Rainbow of Fancy Profits

At White's a man gets style and quality in his suit or coat without paying extra for it.

That's the paramount point to keep in mind about White's—which gives a careful man a concrete reason why he should buy here and reduce the annual cost of his clothes.

The fascination of the fancy profits many custom tailors charge for STYLE has naturally excited the acquisitiveness of many dealers. It would be strange if it didn't. But you know very well that as soon as any genius for style creating shows his head above the level of others he is secured by the big clothing makers. In this way the big manufacturers can give the lines and effect of the higher price clothes at a fraction of what some tailors and some retailers charge, because the cost is distributed over so many suits or coats.

Keep That in Mind and See White's This Week

GERMANS HELP RELIEF WORK FOR BELGIANS

THE HAGUE, Oct. 15, via London.—The chief of the German army staff in the east and west Flanders zone of operations announces that an arrangement for the provisions of about 200,000 Belgian civilians in that district has been concluded with Herbert C. Hoover, Oscar T. Crosby and Julius A. Van Hee, American Vice Consul at Ghent, representing the American Relief Commission.

The German authorities have requisitioned, at fixed prices, the cereal and root crops over a state allowance for the family and animals of each grower. The whole of these crops, except oats and rye, will be handed over to the commission for distribution. In the place of oats and rye, the Germans will furnish the commission with wheat.

In exchange the commission undertakes to import wheat sufficient to make up the deficit, together with the usual ration of bacon, lard, rice and fodder. The daily average of imports by the commission into this section amounts to about 1,000 tons.

STATE CONTROL AS TERMINAL REMEDY

William C. Ewing of the Boston City Planning Commission declared to the Boston Terminal Commission today that State control of the transportation facilities in the metropolitan district will result in a reduction of fares.

Mr. Ewing recommended electrification of all lines within the metropolitan district. All the railways and railroads in this district should be under one management, he said.

For a proper development of terminal facilities he recommended:

A tunnel connecting the North and South stations.

A tunnel connecting at Portland street with the Boston & Maine, running under City Hall, parallel with Washington street to Eliot street, and connecting with the Boston & Albany and New Haven tracks near Castle square.

A highway over the railroad tracks running out of South Station.

Charles S. Mellen favored the tunnel between the North and South Stations from a railroad standpoint, said Mr. Ewing.

William H. Coolidge, former attorney for the Boston & Maine Railroad and now a member of the commission, said that under State control fares would have to be doubled in order to meet fixed expenses and interest on bonds.

"There are two methods of operation—private and public—and both methods could be placed before the people on a referendum," said Mr. Ewing.

Mr. Ewing recommended that the entire terminal system should be placed under the direction of one man, subject to the Public Service Commission, who could not be removed for personal or political reasons.

Solomon Lewenberg of the United Improvement Association said the members of the association favor unification of the terminal facilities and belt line between the North and South stations, under public control.

George Cherry, for the Mount Hope Citizens' Association, favored State control.

Security League Meeting Wednesday

Absolute safety against foreign invasion, through the activities of a National Security League, is aimed at in invitations sent out by Mayor Curley to thousands of citizens today, to help form a branch of this league in Boston at a public meeting in the old aldermanic chamber, Wednesday afternoon.

Members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, as well as all other leading civic and social organizations of the city are included in these invitations to take part in this meeting. Special emphasis is placed on the non-political character of the proposed organization.

Public Service Board Moves Against B.&M.

The Public Service Commission today filed an answer in the Supreme Court to the petition of the National Dock & Storage Warehouse Company, saying that after exhausting all powers vested in it by statute, it has directed the Attorney General to bring proceedings against the Boston & Maine Railroad Company to cease discriminating in rates to the National Dock & Storage Warehouse Company of East Boston.

Of this total, the number of men killed was 18,357 of whom 1,395 were officers.

Casualties of the Australasian contingents were 29,121.

Women Advise Neutral Nations to Peace Move

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—That the European nations at war would look without disfavor upon a conference of the neutral powers as a possible medium for the settlement of the world war was the gist of a report made public today by the International Committee of Women for Permanent Peace. Delegates who attended the Women's International Peace Congress at The Hague last Spring believe that more good was accomplished than the world at large realizes.

Women peace workers who have visited the capitals of the belligerent nations and conferred with members of warring governments express the belief in the report that the neutral nations are prepared for a preliminary peace conference provided they can get the co-operation of the United States.

Professor Emily Greene Balch of Wellesley College and Miss Jane Addams of Chicago are signers of the report.

Neighbor Towns to Vote on Fall River Question

Under a curious provision of law, the towns of Westport, Somerset and Swanzea will vote with Fall River at the State election on the question whether Fall River's police and license commission should be abolished.

The law prescribes that all questions of public opinion shall be voted on by representative districts. The three towns are merged in districts with Fall River wards and for this reason Fall River's expression as to whether the State-appointed commission shall be abolished may be influenced by voters who are not within the jurisdiction of the commission.

Fifteen questions of public opinion will be set before the voters on election day. The State-wide questions are woman suffrage, taxation and the authority of the State to take lands for homesteads.

Legislature will decide whether or not it is to become a city. Cambridge, Everett, Lynn, Melrose, Salem and Taunton will vote on new forms of charter. Boston will have the recall to decide. The other questions are local and of minor importance.

11 GERMAN SHIPS SUNK IN BALTIC BY BRITISH

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Great Britain has begun a vigorous submarine warfare on Germany, centring her attention on German shipping in the Baltic Sea. As a result of this new activity, eleven German steamships have been sunk in the Baltic. All the sunken craft carried metals.

A Copenhagen dispatch today announced the sinking of five German steamers by the British U-boats. These five victims swell the total to eleven, with the probability that the British campaign will prove as fruitful as did the German undersea warfare against Great Britain some months ago.

Copenhagen also reports that the Germans have quickly answered the latest war move of England by sea by sending out armed trawlers to hunt for the British submarines. Germany is thus adopting England's plan of arming small craft as submarine-chasers.

Though no official word is forthcoming from the Admiralty, it is known that the new activity of the submarines is aimed at Germany's hitherto thriving trade with Sweden. Up to this time this traffic has been uninterrupted and almost without risk. Germany has received not only thousands of cargoes of metals for munitions of war, but also foodstuffs.

It is also hinted here that the British U-boat campaign is designed to make more effective the blockade of Germany, which in the past has been attacked by neutrals as ineffective and illegal.

Steamer Linda Fell Regarded as Lost

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The British steamship Linda Fell, 5,306 tons, which left Philadelphia for Cuba, September 19 and has been missing since, is now given up as lost. Stories that a German raiding yacht has attacked merchant craft in the Gulf of Mexico recently are connected with the disappearance of the Linda Fell in some quarters.

James H. Knowlton is Dead at Woburn

James Henry Knowlton died today at his home on Kimball road, Woburn, at the age of eighty-three. He was the oldest member of Post 33, G. A. R., and enlisted in Company G of the Fifth Regiment, in which division he served through the war. He was born in Eliot, Maine, October 22, 1832.

Prosecution of Al Davis Asked by Mrs. Kelly

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Edward Kelly, whose daughter, Eugenia, refuses to obey her mother's behest to give up "Al" Davis, the cabaret dancer, has informed the District Attorney's office that she would produce "a lot of new evidence for the Grand Jury."

John F. McIntyre, Mrs. Kelly's counsel, stated that detectives who had watched Miss Kelly and Davis were turning in reports that would warrant drastic action against the latter.

When Miss Eugenia was asked if she were still determined to carry out her threat to wed the cabaret dancer, she replied:

"The prospects of my marriage are more vague now. It is hard to say when it will be. 'Al' gets his final divorce decree next month, you know. Yet I don't think it will be then. Don't ask me why. All I can say is that there are too many difficulties."

HOOPER PLAYS CUPID FOR GARDNER

When Harry Hooper clouted the ball for his second home run in that famous final game, he put D. Cupid in the way of winning a World's Series, too.

And here is the score
Red Sox AND Cupid, champions
Larry Gardner, bridegroom-elect.

And to Hooper goes the honor of an "assist" to Cupid, for it is through the valiant Harry that Larry Gardner wins his bride-to-be.

Now that the big series is all over there comes to light baseball's happiest romance of the year, for Gardner is engaged to marry Miss Margaret Forney of Winthrop.

Miss Forney lives with her aunt, Mrs. Joseph P. Mosser, of No. 72 Bartlett road, Winthrop Centre. Mr Mosser is an uncle of Harry Hooper. Thus it happened that the valiant right fielder of the Red Sox took his close friend Gardner to visit the Winthrop home, and it was there that he introduced Miss Forney to the doughty third baseman.

Love did the rest.

And Hooper helped outdo again in that final game against the Phillies, for his grand home run clinched the series, and winning the series meant that Gardner like the rest of the champions, won $1,500 instead of the much smaller sum that the losing Phillies got.

Miss Forney is lovely, talented and attractive. She was born in Canton, O., but has been living with her aunt for some time. Gardner is well, everybody knows and admires Larry, championship winner both as man and ball player. Everybody likes him and that's why all the fans will be sending him their congratulations now on his engagement.

New Suit Reward for Duffy Lewis

Duffy Lewis, the famous left fielder of the Champion Red Sox, was rewarded with a suit of clothes by the Leopold Morse Company today for the two-base hit he made during the first game of the World's Series on Braves Field. It had been announced before the games that a suit would be given free of charge to any Red Sox player making a two-base or better hit during the game on home ground. Speaker is also entitled to the gift.

JEWEL ROBBERY DESCRIBED BY MRS. DRAPER

down in the family for generations and which were priceless.

"I place the total monetary value of the stolen articles at between $3,000 and $4,000.

MEN WERE SEEN RUNNING.

"Expressman Brondson saw two men running from the house, saw them jump into an auto and put on high speed and disappear towards Canton.

"A search of the shrubbery here indicated that both men had watched the house from a hiding place in a bush, had seen the maid working upstairs and had watched her put out the lights. One of them probably staid on watch, while the other climbed up the porch and into the window which we did not keep locked as it is on the second floor.

The robber was probably frightened out of the house by the maid who had later returned upstairs. The robber, in escaping, closed the window and lowered the screen."

The police sent out hundreds of circulars today, describing the stolen gems. The Boston police combed the city in the hope of locating the robbers through attempts to get rid of their loot.

Private detectives were engaged immediately after the discovery of the robbery, and later Chief Maurice Pierce of the Milton police was notified. He in turn asked the authorities of Boston and other cities to be on the lookout for the robbers.

ATTENDED GAME.

The police said that Mr. and Mrs. Draper had attended Monday's ball game at Braves Field and had been followed by two men after the game. The police refused to say whether they had any facts as to the identity of the two men, but they did say that a person once employed by the Drapers was under suspicion.

The Draper home—"Over Lea"—is at the corner of Canton avenue and Atherton street, in the Blue Hills section of Milton. Mr and Mrs. Draper have three children, Miss Ruth S., Miss Olivia A. and Copeland M. Draper.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pain should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights. Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Winter Schedule of B. & A. Goes Into Effect on Sunday

The Boston & Albany Railroad will put in winter schedule into effect Sunday. There is a change in the schedule of one through trains to Albany and the West, or in any through east-bound trains from the West. The trains to and from New York city via Springfield will maintain the present schedule.

Several changes will be made in trains running between Boston and Worcester, and in trains running to and from Stevens Junction via the main line and the Highland circuit.

Melancholy Over Sister's Illness, Girl Drinks Poison

Florence Mallarnathy, seventeen, is in a critical condition at St Elizabeth's Hospital, suffering from poison, which she swallowed, she claimed, she swallowed in error at No 16 Roddy place, Brighton.

According to the police, the girl had become melancholy over the illness of her sister, to whom she was devoted. It is reported that the doctors have expressed no hope for the recovery of the sister and that this pressed on the mind of the younger girl.

Bay State Man Wins Third Honors in U. S. Rifle Shoot

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Oct. 15.—Andrew Hagen, a gunnery sergeant in the marine corps is the individual military rifle champion of the United States, having won the prize match by shooting a perfect score of 50 for 25 shots in the final stage of the match here.

He only won the honors over Corporal J. G. Grandy of the United States Cavalry because he had a higher score at 1,000 yards, both having the same aggregate for the four ranges of 247 out of a possible 250. Sergeant J. T. Lawless, of Massachusetts, with a similar aggregate took third money.

7 Persons Thrown When Auto and Depot Carriage Collide

SHARON, Oct. 15.—Seven persons were thrown to the ground when a depot carriage, carrying the driver and three passengers, and an automobile, owned and operated by L. W. Benjamin of Boston and Sharon, collided between Norwood and Sharon. No one was seriously hurt.

With Mr. Benjamin was Dr. W. W. Merrill of Jamaica Plain. The passengers in the depot carriage were W. H. Brown of Fall River and his two young daughters. Edward Leary was driving the carriage.

Clark Charges Republican Party with Boss Rule

GARDNER, Oct. 15.—Nelson R. Clark, Progressive candidate for Governor, in an address, charged the Republican party with boss rule, and declared the "invisible" government of the Republicans dominated the Legislature.

He spoke strongly for the initiative and referendum and attacked the proposed constitutional convention which the Republican party incorporated in its platform. In regard to the latter, he said that the convention was but bait for Progressive votes which, he declared, would prove fruitless.

Sweden Protests Acts of British E-Boats in Baltic

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Swedish government has instructed its minister at London to protest against the violation of Swedish neutrality by British submarines in the Baltic, according to a Stockholm dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company.

It is alleged that British submarines have sunk two German steamers in Swedish waters.

Seventeen Steamers Missing.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Seventeen German ore steamers which plied in the Baltic sea are missing, and are believed to have been sunk by the British submarines.

GOVERNOR WALSH REPLIES TO M'CALL ON FARMER'S ISSUE

Governor Walsh, in a speech bristling with claims of what he had done for the farmers, agriculture and the milk industry, replied at Democratic rallies held in Newburyport, Amesbury and Merrimac to the statement made by Samuel W. McCall, the Republican candidate for Governor, during his tour of the western part of the State. Governor Walsh said in part:

I notice in the speeches of my opponent, delivered to the farmers in the western part of the state, that he refers slightingly to my policy toward the interests of the farmers and the milk question in particular, as being one of "mere letters" and lacking in constructive statesmanship.

My Republican opponent declared himself a constructive statesman and promised, if elected, that he would do this and that to benefit agricultural conditions, particularly with reference to the milk industry. He further says that the milk industry has been made the football of political busy bodies to such an extent that the producer and middleman have been set at odds.

He also promises that if elected he will be some yet to-be-discovered means, rejuvenate agriculture in the western part of the State and put the milk industry in such a position that it will benefit the farmer as it did in olden times. In fact he paints a rosy picture primarily for the consumption of the farmers for political effect.

Now, the farmers, not only of the western part of the State but of all parts of the state, know who their pal friend has been in the State House for the past two years.

I want to ask my opponent, if he should by any chance be elected, will he approve a bill similar to the so-called Myron E. Pierce Milk bill, which I, in justice to the farmers and at their earnest request, believed it my duty to veto? This bill, which I vetoed, was sent to me by a solidly Republican Legislature.

What do you propose to do? The farmers know it by position. They have a right to know yours and know it definitely.

If elected will you Mr. McCall, approve a bill similar to the Myron E. Pierce Milk bill or will you veto it? Which shall it be?

What answer have you to the fact that people in the cities pay twice as much per quart for milk today as was charged fifty years ago, while the farmer receives little if any, more than he did at that time?

Do you recollect that I urged by message and inaugural an investigation to find out whether or not combination or agreement contrary to the public policy, existed which artificially and wrongfully reduced the price paid for milk to the farmer and artificially and wrongfully raised the price paid by the consumer?

Was not this action of mine constructive statesmanship, and was not the refusal to adopt my recommendations and recommendations by the Republican Legislature, your present supporters, an example of Republican destructive statesmanship?

HAS HELPED FARMERS.

You say that agriculture is in such a deplorable condition that in a few years the cow will be a fit subject for exhibition in a museum of natural history. You surely do not accuse the Democratic party or Democratic doctrine for being responsible for such a condition?

How do you account for the fact that from the period from 1880 to 1910 statistics show that in the counties of Berkshire, Franklin, Hampden and Hampshire the improved farm land under cultivation actually shrank over 40 per cent., and that the same proportion of shrinkage be said to obtain throughout the State.

I ask you if my veto of the so-called Myron E. Pierce Milk bill was not in itself a piece of constructive statesmanship?

I did not my veto interpose barriers against the destruction of the farmer's milk industry?

If you are elected Governor will you better my record in regard to good roads for the farmers of this State, for whom I secured from the last Legislature an appropriation of nine and one-half millions of dollars?

Maxim Gorky Scores Russian Pretenders

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Maxim Gorky, the famous Russian writer, protests against the talkative Russian ministers, who pretend that Russia is able to continue the war for five years, retreating to the Ural mountains. Gorky says that Russia in that case would cease to exist.

Let Resinol Make Your Sick Skin Well

That itching, burning skin can be healed! The first use of resinol ointment seldom fails to give instant relief. With the help of resinol soap, this soothing, healing ointment usually clears away all trace of eczema, ringworm, rash or similar torturing, disfiguring, sleep-preventing skin-diseases quickly and at little cost. Physicians have prescribed resinol ointment regularly for over twenty years, so you need not hesitate to use it freely. Sold by all druggists. For a sample free, write to Dept. 4-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

IS YOUR TOILET SOAP SAFE?

Many toilet soaps contain harsh, injurious alkali. Resinol soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and to it is added the resinol medication. This gives it soothing, healing properties which clear the complexion, comfort tender skins and keep the hair healthy.

CZAR OPENS NEW CAMPAIGN IN BUKOWINA

By ANDRE BEAUMONT

Special Cable to the International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

MILAN, Oct. 15.—It is reported the Russians have begun a serious offensive movement in Bukowina. Their aviators have bombarded Czernowitz.

The Bulgarians are reported here to have attacked the Serbians near Vlasinitza, but were repulsed. Vlasinitza is an important strategic position on the railway from Uskub to Kumanovo, close to the Bulgarian border. The Bulgar and thus have begun their attack on Serbia at three points, at Kniashevats, Zaichar and Vlasinitza. The correspondent of the Corriera Della Sera at Bucharest wires that the Danube near the Roumanian frontier has been the scene of obstinate fighting.

The Germans crossed the front from Orsova to Kida Kale Island, but were repulsed until the Serbian guns finally compelled them to evacuate Orsova. Germans renewed their attempt to cross the river higher up. Two rafts on each of which were more than 200 men were demolished by the Serbian fire and the men drowned.

FORD GIFT FOR CANADA FUND 'NOT A SOP'

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—Henry Ford before he left for an extended California trip, made two announcements taken to mean a vigorous renewal of criticism centering around him, which led the previous day to the departure from the Ford Motor Company of James Couzens, his closest business associate. The first statement of Mr. Ford was that he had contributed $10,000 to the Canadian Red Cross. The statement was immediately denied by his Canadian manager, Duncan McGregor, who said:

"I have Mr. Ford's check for $10,000 in my pocket, but I will not turn it over to the Red Cross till later."

The second statement of Mr. Ford was in favor of Detroit municipalizing its street car system. It drew instant attack, the Detroit Free Press accusing him of insincerity.

What amounts to a virtual boycott of Ford motor cars now exists in Canada. Manager McGregor announces that employes of the Ford Canadian factory in Ford City would be asked to contribute to the Red Cross next week on a day set apart by Mr. Ford for a Red Cross campaign.

"The gift of Mr. Ford is not to be construed in any way as a sop or pacification offer to those who have differed with his views in Canada," said Mr. McGregor. "Mr. Ford made this $10,000 gift because he is opposed to the horrors of war and wishes to alleviate some of the sufferings at the front."

Germans Handle Hot Guns with Gloves at Loos

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes some interesting details of the French attack on last Monday against the German positions between Givenchy and Loos. The German batteries fired incessantly, causing the gun barrels to become so hot that the gunners were forced to use thick gloves in handling them.

The French attack on nearly all parts of the line broke down before the German positions, which in several places were built in mine and grenade holes.

At only one place, where the machine guns were buried in the ground, was there hand-to-hand fighting. Here the Bavarian troops conquered their French adversaries with knives and hand grenades. The Lokal Anzeiger concludes with the statement that most of the French captured as prisoners were found to be intoxicated.

17 German Flyers Kill Five in Raid

MILAN, Oct. 16.—Seventeen German aeroplanes took part in an aerial battle at Kragujevas and threw forty-three bombs trying to hit the arsenal, but without success. Five persons were killed and ten injured.

HARVARD PLANS FOR ANOTHER WAR UNIT

Harvard will maintain for six months more the hospital unit carried on for wounded soldiers in France.

When the service was established in the Summer, Harvard, Columbia and Johns Hopkins proposed to carry it on for nine months, and each institution was to be responsible for three months of service. Harvard organized its unit and has conducted the hospital for almost three months, but Columbia and Johns Hopkins found that they could not obtain a satisfactory outfit of surgeons and nurses at this time. If war ends Harvard will therefore continue the work.

Dr. Edward H. Nichols, physician in charge of the Harvard football team, will organize the new unit, but will not go with it abroad. About forty of the nurses and several of the surgeons now in service will remain in France, but about twenty-five surgeons and thirty-five nurses are needed to fill the places of those who will soon return to America.

Danube Closed to Shipping by Mines

MILAN, Oct. 15.—The Bulgarians have laid mines all along the bank of the Danube. This closes navigation in the Danube.

PREPAREDNESS COURSE URGED ON HARVARD

Compulsory military drill and rifle practice should have a prominent place in the Harvard curriculum, according to John A. L. Blake, Boston financier and Harvard graduate. He says:

"Harvard College, however, can and should give a course in military science to combine lectures, required reading, actual drill and, if possible, rifle practice as well. I believe that this course should be made compulsory for every sophomore, junior and senior who has not already taken it or who cannot present a certificate showing that he is a member of the militia and in good standing therein."

Trip to Coast Is Officially Abandoned

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—The proposed trip to the Pacific coast of the World's Champion Red Sox and the Philadelphia National League pennant winners was officially declared off by Robert B. McRoy, representing the National Commission.

Inability to agree on a financial arrangement is the cause for the abandonment of the trip.

Men to Discuss Problems of Day

A great, interdenominational conference, summoning 3,500 men of all churches of eastern Massachusetts to come together for the capitalization of Christian life and influence into a great co-operation which shall reach out into all the activities of life and meet the practical problems of our day, has been called to meet at Tremont Temple, November 11 to 17. The Boston Laymen's Convention will be one of seventy-five conferences to be held in as many cities of the country, culminating in a national missionary convention at Washington next April.

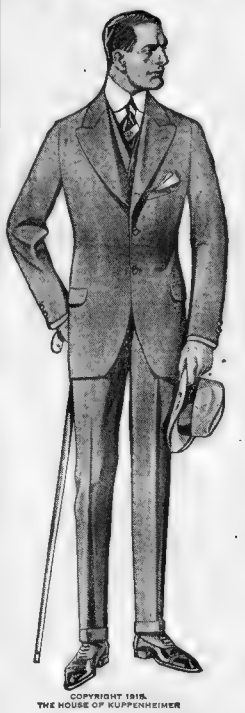
HALF SIZES In Men's Clothing



COPYRIGHT 1915, THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

Made by The House of Kuppenheimer Exclusively
Sold in Boston by this Live Store Exclusively

The brilliant minds that invented pants, originated pockets and devised suspenders (not to mention many other improvements in Men's wear since Hector was a pup) have passed into oblivion. But were they all known and suitably honored, none would rank higher than The House of Kuppenheimer, for while such notable achievements as their "Foreward" model (for stoop-shouldered men) and their "Klavicle" overcoat (a sensational success) are still less than two years old, they now take the initiative again in making Half-Sizes in men's suits.

The Need—

Men do not measure in even sizes. Countless records extending over many years show more fractional sizes than even sizes. But the even size was as accurate as clothing makers found practicable under existing methods of designing and tailoring.

The Way—

The need being proven, The House of Kuppenheimer was peculiarly fitted for the development of the idea. For this finer grading of sizes demands the utmost nicety of workmanship—a feature which has long been characteristic of Kuppenheimer Clothes.

The Result—

Now more men than ever before can get a new suit here and wear it out of the store without even the change of a single button. And the effect is noticeably smarter, especially in the fashionable close-fitting models with natural shoulders.

You men who are "betwixt and between"—who are too big for one size and too small for the next—can now come to Kennedy's and get your exact size in a Kuppenheimer Suit with all the style, all the fabric value, all the tailoring worth for which these great makers are famous. It took five years to develop that new measure of skill and accuracy required to produce half sizes. But the result is yours at no extra cost. There's a fine range of choice patterns for you to select from at $25

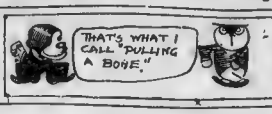
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



WOLGAST PULLS OUT OF MATCH WITH WHITE

AD WOLGAST, former lightweight champion boxer pulled another one yesterday, when Wolgast wired Promoter Mike Collins of the Ithaca A. A. that Tuesday night.

The directors of the Ithaca Club today made overtures to several good men to take Wolgast's place but as yet have not secured an opponent for White. It is believed that Johnny Harvey, who has beaten Matty Baldwin, will substitute for Wolgast.

The local club tried to secure Willie Beecher, but the New York scrapper had a previous engagement for the same night and was forced to reject the offer.

JOE CHICK, the Gloucester boxer, has been signed to meet Jack Sweeny in a ten-round bout which will be staged before the Knickerbocker A. C. in Albany next Monday night. Chick and Sweeny recently fought a draw battle at New Bedford.

FRANKIE MACK, of Beachmont, and Freddy Yelle, the Revere boxer, will take part in a three-round affair at New Bedford next Monday night. Those boys always furnish plenty of fast boxing and a fair display of clean and skilful fighting for the fistic lovers of the Whaling City.

BARNEY SAULDER is out with a challenge to meet any 118 1/2 pound boxer in New England. The Roxbury lad is particularly anxious to secure a match with Sammy Stearns.

Georgetown Drops Boston College Game

Word was received at Boston College that the Thanksgiving Day game with Georgetown has been cancelled by the latter team. No reason has been assigned by the Georgetown team and the athletic heads of Boston College are at a loss to understand the action of the Southern team.

Plans had been made to get a game the latter part of the season, the Washington team to be given a good drawing. Followers of both teams will be greatly surprised and peeved when the word has been passed around that Georgetown has no game on Boston soil this season. Boston College and Georgetown have been the two leading colleges in the South Atlantic football zone. It is a severe blow to the latter institution, especially as there is no possibility of securing another game.

Arrangements are on foot for a Boston College game with Carlisle for Thanksgiving Day, although there is no possibility that Catholic University may be brought on from Washington for the day.

Felton Loses to Helm.

In the Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard League series at Lafayette Hall, Edmund Helm defeated George Felton of Revere, 50 to 37. Helm's high run was 5.

YALE ELEVEN IS IMPROVING

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 15.—There was jubilation in the Yale football camp today over the great improvement out of the varsity eleven.

The first team made the best showing of the year yesterday and romped over the gridiron for four touchdowns against the strong team of scrubble players. In addition to that a promising candidate for the quarterback position was unearthed in the person of Bill Savage, who played on the scrub team yesterday, but was injured in the last season.

The performance yesterday seemed to indicate that the Yale team, under Frank Hinkey, had regained its stride and could be expected to improve steadily from now on. The drill was a long hard one, and a sweltering heat wave enveloped the gridiron during the last part. In spite that handicap, however, Hinkey went with a snap and spirit that have not been realized on the field this year.

"The best showing so far this season" was the way "Bud" Talbot, one of the assistant coaches, asserted.

Talbot took occasion to deny reports which have gained currency to the effect that there was friction between the players and the coaching staff.

CAPTAIN MAHAN DEVELOPING INTO CONSISTENT DROP-KICKER

By BYDE LYNES.

With the exception of a light drill in the Stadium this afternoon to keep the men limbered up and their minds focused on the big scrap tomorrow with the Midshipmen of Yale, all is ready for the Harvard football warriors. To say that they have had a full week in getting in trim for the fray is putting it mildly. The last week, who, because of injury sustained on the field of battle, are ineligible for an honorable discharge, proves the contention that it was one of the hardest weeks in football history at Cambridge. The Red Crimson quarters are crowded just now, but very few who are the injured men.

MAHAN OUT OF GAME.

McKinnon, the fullback who played such a sterling game in stopping up the Red Sox plays, will not be in the scrap tomorrow. Also Hayes, a strong defensive end on the line, is absolutely hors de combat. The coaches have also all been hammering at the varsity to weld the line into a semblance of that great Crimson bulwark of last season and judging from the good showing of practice this has been accomplished to a degree. Of course the work of the coaches has been greatly retarded by injuries, which have made it necessary to constantly shift the men in their positions.

One of the few encouraging features of the past week or so is that which Soule is out most brilliant drop kicking of Captain Mahan, who continually treads on rival Brickley's record as a booter of the spheroid. This also applies in a degree to Robinson and Whitney. In the last scrimmage, that between the varsity and the subs, these three men gave a remarkable exhibition of kicking goals from points anywhere from fifteen to thirty-five yards from the goal line.

When within scoring distance of the enemy's goal this was the only play used. Two formations were limited to this one for two reasons. First, to give the kickers plenty of practice, so that in case Virginia is a stiffer proposition than is anticipated this method of scoring can be resorted to, and in the second place, to drill the team on forming interference and protection for the kicker.

Holding down the position of quarterback on the Red Sox plays will not be in the scrap tomorrow. Lynn makes a strong defensive end on the line an absolute necessity. The coaches have worked all week hammering at the varsity to weld the line into a semblance of that great Crimson bulwark of last season and judging from the good showing of practice this has been accomplished to a degree. Of course the work of the coaches has been greatly retarded by injuries, which have made it necessary to constantly shift the men in their positions.

One of the few encouraging features of the past week or so is that which

SERIES SHOWED HONESTY OF BASEBALL

By SAM CRANE.

Great prestige was again given to the honesty of baseball by the winning in such dramatic style of the fifth game of the World's Series by the Red Sox.

Mind you, there was $60,000 at Fenway Park ready to be paid by baseball enthusiasts to witness the sixth game had that been necessary and it would have been obligatory if the Phillies had won that last great contest.

What made the winning finish so conclusive that the great national game is strictly and absolutely on the level and so impressed itself on the "doubters," was that there were some plays made in the earlier part of the game that gave the "tin horn" gamblers the chance to throw up their hand and shout "fake."

Baseball, again as it did last year and in all years it has been in existence, established itself as the cleanest sport on the earth.

BETTER TEAM TRIUMPHANT.

The series was won by the better team. The Red Sox fully and unqualifiedly established themselves as being entitled to all the high honors and much money that accrues to the winner.

The Red Sox are a grand baseball machine. They may not be quite up to the class that so distinguished the Athletics and Cubs when they were in their prime, but they play together as one, and nothing escaped them in their grand struggle that ended in victory.

The outfield of the Sox stood out particularly prominent in team work and play. Where it was displayed at its best was on Braves Field, where both centre and right fields are sun fields. After Speaker missed Stock's fine fly in the first game, Speaker and Hooper fixed up the scheme that the latter should croag into the former's territory for fly balls in right centre.

LEWIS SIMPLY SUPERB.

As Hooper would cross over he would not be gazing at old Sol, who beamed bright and smiling at every game of the five. Both are excellent fielders, none better, in fact. Speaker plays the part like an infielder and digs up ground balls with the facility of a Maranville or a Bancroft.

The Phillies found it impossible to get a safe fly into either Hooper's or Speaker's garden, and the justice to Duffy Lewis, it can be said and truly so that he can take care of his own particular ballwick without any help at all.

He was simply superb in this series, both at bat and in fielding. I therefore hasten to get into line and offer my measure of praise to the Native Son."

The Phillies went down to defeat, but they fought to the bitter end and when that is said and in the face of the fact that they must have known they were battling for a losing course, their gameness cannot be doubted. They went down with colors flying and their friends have no just reason for complaint.

CRAVATH COMPLETELY LOST.

There were several aggravating incidents such as the "flivving" of "Cactus" Cravath, the champion home run hitter of the country, who, in the series was fondly expected to dent all the stonewalls surrounding the Phillies' grounds and, too, by his terrific swats, make immense Braves Field look like another band box park.

"Cactus" did neither. He was completely "lost." He had many chances too, during the five games to uphold his slugging reputation by clouting in runs, but he never arose to the opportunities presented him.

To Alexander and Chalmers nothing but praise can be given. They pitched nervily. If their fellow players had afforded them a few runs to work on—say three, a different story might be forthcoming, but they didn't, so there you are.

Red Sox Players Rush to Reach Their Homes

By RIGHT FIELD.

Today will see a big exodus of the World's Champion Red Sox from Boston; by nightfall Harold Janvrin of Roxbury will be about the only player in the city.

With the decision not to take part in the proposed tour to the Pacific Coast made, the Carrigan clan rushed to pack up their belongings for the trip home. "Chet" Thomas is going hunting. So is Tris Speaker. Ray Collins cannot get back to that Vermont farm of his soon enough.

Probably the happiest member of the Red Sox squad is "Larry" Gardner, whose fiancee, Margaret Forney of Canton, arrived at Fenway Park in his auto while "Larry" went to get that check for $3,826.80.

Great receptions await the Red Sox when they arrive at their home towns. Bill Carrigan will own Lewiston for several days. All the home towns will fete their native sons.

The refunding of money to the "fans" for their third Boston game tickets began at Fenway Park today and will continue until further notice.

Sidelights on Sports

By RIGHT FIELD

THE coming of Wilhoit, the hard-hitting outfielder of the Venice team of the Pacific League, to the Braves, and the release of Catcher Whaling and Outfielder Moran to that dear old California is taken by the Boston "fans" to be the forerunner of quite a little rebuilding of the World's Champions of 1914 by Owner Gaffney and Manager Stallings.

ONE of the things the Braves must have in the outfield to be a lot more speed and a lot more stick work. Gaffney, if he is backed as he stood, is willing to pay for speed and swatting and pay well if he can get the simon-pures article. It is in the outfield and in the pitcher's box that we most likely will see the most new faces when the Braves square off next April to go after the gonfalon from the drop of the hat.

THAT outfield at Braves Field is going to be about the fastest bit of garden in the big league after the rains and snows of Winter have thoroughly packed down the fine material that was used to resurface the old golf club course. The Braves' garden has been growing faster each week since the opening day, last August 18. Stallings must have the greyhounds of baseball to do his gardening if he wants to hold down the extra base drives of his foe.

MAGEE will probably be a fixture. Hank Compton has the makings of a ball player, but it is probable that Eddie Collins, the former Pirate, who showed some of his wares late in the season at the local yard, can deliver more goods than Bash. "Snow" Snodgrass, if his injured hand turns out all right after a Winter's rest, will also make a fight for a regular berth. Speed will set the call when it comes to selecting a regular trio for the 1916 campaign and those gardeners who are not able to furnish speed plus a healthy batting average will likely find themselves the subjects of trades or sales.

AS for the Reaves pitching problem, Big Bill James may furnish an "Ed Walsh" and appear ready for first-class work in the Spring. "Lefty George" Tyler, who practiced so much at first base this season, seems to feel in his own heart that the fate of George Wiltse awaits him

Neht, Barnes, "Rescue Tom" Hughes and Ragan will be with us again, and likewise Dick Rudolph. Hughes may have his rescue work so lightened next year that he can blossom out every four days. Rudolph ought to have a much better year in 1916, if the strain of such as he had this year can be taken off his shoulders.

THEN there is Luque, who was sent to the farm this year and is one of the rising thirty players on the Braves' reserve list. Stallings, with a star pitching trio or quartet built up, with a speedy outfield can about stand pat on his $99,000 infield

IT will be interesting to see what McGraw does with his Giants. Having gotten the old stove drawing well, we might look into their case another day.

GOLFERS START MATCH PLAY FOR CUP

The sixteen fortunate golfers who qualified yesterday over the classy Clyde Park links, started on their way this morning in the annual Fall meeting in quest of golfing honors and the most prized of all open amateur trophies—the Country Club cup.

In the upper half of the draw J. M. Sullivan, Jr., of Woodland, who knows the Country Club course well and as a member of this year's State team, proved he is a player of ability, was the first off, opposing C. M Amory of both Essex and the Country Club and a former member of the State champion, H. W. Stuckles, were in the next bracket and followed by R. H. Hovey, the former Rhode Island State champion, who played against J. N Manning

Another visitor, L. M. Washburn, from Philadelphia, opposed a former state's representatives in team competition

F. I. Emery the leader in the members' handicap, paired against Carl Stuckles, a brother of former Country Club winner in the person of J. H Hylan, who quite surprised himself and everyone else by topping the field yesterday with Guilford and Bass

R. M Purves, one of Woodland's best, and M. F. O'Connell, who is no stranger to Country Club golf but is better known as Fitchburg's golfing Mayor, were the starters in the lower half of the draw. Jesse Guilford and G. R. Clouch were followed by Pushee, who rivals Clough, and W. E. Sibley, the youngest player in the event.

C. W. Bass, who dethroned Guilford as the New Hampshire State titleholder and tied with him yesterday in the qualification, was the last player off and he opposed A. McMillan of Brae-Burn, a stranger to Country Club match play events.

The drawing is a very even one, with the stars so distributed that the best four should be bracketed on Saturday morning in the semi-final

The pairings for match play

H. Sanborn, Jr. Woodland, vs. H. Amory, Essex County.
H. W. Stuckles, the Country, vs. C. Stuckles, Brae Burn.
R. H. Hovey, Rhode Island, vs. J. N. Manning, Brae-Burn.
L. M. Washburn, Merion, vs. J. H. Hylan, Vesper.
R. M. Purves, Woodland, vs. M. F. O'Connell, Alpine.
G. R. Clough, Bellevue, vs. J. F. Guilford, Essex County.
G. H. Pushee, Brae-Burn, vs. W. E. Sibley, Mt. Pleasant.
C. W. Bass, Portsmouth, vs. A. McMillan, Brae-Burn.

First Woman "Pro" Comes to America

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The first woman golf professional to come to this country is Mrs. May Dunn Webb, who recently arrived from England and has contracted with the Princess Golf Club in Metcham, Surrey.

Mrs. Webb is of the famous Dunn family of golfers. John Dun is her brother, and Willie Dunn, the first open champion in America, is her uncle. She intends to instruct woman golfers in this country.

Larry Burns, the Lawrence lightweight, has secured Joe McCarthy of South Boston to care for his business interests. Burns is one of the most promising lightweights in the East and McCarthy expects to pilot him to the ranks of the star performers.

The Peninsular boxing manager today stated that he is ready to sign Burns for a frolic with any lightweight in the East

Dartmouth Student Body to Come Here

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 15.—The days when all Hanover would descend from the hills for the annual game with Harvard, before that Boston sporting event was called off by the Crimson authorities, will be renewed this Fall. The colleges faculty has granted an athletic holiday for the Dartmouth-Penn game in Boston, November 6, and it is expected that practically the entire student body will go down en masse as was the custom in the past. Last November, to be sure, the big Green team had a Boston date, that with Syracuse November 21, but the game was not considered the real climax of the season Although Pennsylvania has already been beaten this season, the game is looked forward to with great interest, best indicated by the faculty's recent declaration of a holiday.

Two B. C. H. Players Declared Eligible

The hopes of the Boston College High eleven received a substantial increase when Dick Montgomery, star half back on last year's St. John's Prep team, and Royal Kelley, who made a name for himself at Brookline High, were declared eligible to play. The team is going along very smoothly and Coach McCabe feels quite pleased over the defeat of the strong Beverly High team at Beverly Tuesda

Winter Breaks Record.

AMHERST, Oct. 15.—Robert Winter, '17, of Philadelphia, broke the Amherst College pole vault record in the annual underclass track meet here with a jump of 11 feet ¼ inch. The previous record was 10 feet 11½ inches.

FREDDY WELSH TO RETIRE JULY 4

By ED. CARLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. — Freddy Welsh, the lightweight champion, is going to retire. Not right off, however, but when he gets four more championship battles at $16,000 per battle. The reason he needs this stipulated sum of currency is that his children are getting older and eating heartily and that, as you all know, costs money

Freddie demands that these four scraps take place before the fourth of the coming July, for on that holiday Freddie intends to take his family out autoing and kiss farewell to the squared circles.

How and why Freddie decides that a quartette of championship battles is his heart's desire is over our head. At $16,000 per battle we imagine a champ would ever do himself injustice by putting a limit on his earning capacity. And if a fellow ever travels around with fighters he'll soon learn that never was a battler born that would stop fighting if a jitney was in sight.

Of course, we've got to admit Freddie Welsh is far different than the other battlers for he'll pass up many scraps so as to enjoy a rest.

As for the other boxers they'll pass up rest all the time.

Harry Carlson Hot After Ring Bouts

Harry Carlson, the skillfull Brockton 126-pound boxer, today challenges Pinney Boyle, Howard McRae and Al Delmont. Johnny O'Rourke is managing Carlson and he asserted that he is prepared to match his protege with any member of this trio at any club in New England.

"Time Waits---!"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

"AND he up with his hands before his face," before his shocked, delighted gran'father face, and—who said time never stopped!—the clocks waits for a heartbeat—a whirling eternity—while the daughter of the girl who once kissed the girl's father, below his tall gilt and mahogany form, kisses her lover's face and is kissed in return! The shiny old golden face grows into kindly shape, and somewhere in his intricate, whirring brass insides its old heart skips a beat.

If ever you are suddenly, somewhere, in your snug room of a Winter's white night, or drinking your glass of red wine at a friend's table, or playing bridge with your friend's friends, caught with a strange sense that mother earth halted for just a breath, jarring the steady old feet under your body, that Time's heart stood still and he held his breath—why, somewhere—only this—two lovers have kissed beneath an old, old clock!—NELL BRINKLEY.

The Seeker

The Woman Who Has Not Found Herself

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I AM a woman of education, a college graduate and am now doing literary work which I like. I am just an average girl with a reasonable amount of attraction and called good company because I am full of life and use my brain. Aetat thirty. So much for so much. I am not a freak nor a genius; just an average person—I like fine things, cultured things—and I love to dance.

"Perhaps the whole crux of my problem is this: I come of good stock—conventional, bromidic people. It is easy for me to hold the centre, to be the leader—but I am not stimulated. I have to some extent got out of my class and I don't belong in any other—at least, I don't meet any of the people with whom I do belong. Recently my engagement was broken because my fiancee's family, tremendously staid and ponderous people without a gleam of humor, didn't approve of my nature.

"What would you do if you were 12 Somewhere in New York there must be dozens of men and women in just my predicament. Isn't there any solution?"

This letter, which I have reprinted only in part, came to me recently under the signature "Seeker." It voices what seems to me to be the greatest tragedy of modern womanhood—loneliness. And loneliness has in the end to work out its own problem.

A woman as sane and strong and fine as I judge my unknown correspondent to be will of course work out her problem in the end, but first she must know much unhappiness. Out of that unhappiness new strength will come, and because of it she will be the finer woman some day, but today that does not help her at all.

In the signature "Seeker" lies, I think, the best answer to her problem. Women who not only think and work but also feel and long, must always seek, and eventually the search is rewarded—perhaps not just as they would have it rewarded. Full fulfillment has to come. That faith is the saving grace that gives one courage to go on fighting.

Friends come unexpectedly into one's life. Through work, through chance introductions, through all sorts of seemingly unmomentous trifles one gains new friends. The letter, which speaks with a voice of all womankind, seems almost to have brought me a new friend. I could wish that I knew the woman who wrote it, that I could go to her and say, "I am a woman, too. We are sisters. We both understand. And the fight you are making today is worth while. It is the fight of a pioneer, and pioneers always must suffer that those who come after them may find the trail blazed and the settlement begun."

The problem for you is to keep your sanity and poise, to go on believing in yourself and in the joy of working, to make friends with the events of everyday life and to trust that they are all tending to carry you to some worthwhile goal.

Not by a definite search, not by going out and looking for friends, does a woman like you make them. She has rather to keep her lamp trimmed, to keep herself in readiness, to be receptive for all impressions and all friendly advances

The Flower and the Brick

Visitor—"Hallo, Mike! What's that you have in the glass case?"

Mike—"That's the brick I got up again my head at th' last fair."

Visitor—"Oh! And what's that little flower on the top of it for?"

Mike—"That's a flower from the grave of th' man that threw it."

Lime Medication in Tuberculosis

In the N. Y. Medical Record of December 6, 1913, Dr. John Korth, of Toledo, says: "I have come to the conclusion that one of the most important causes (of tuberculosis) is 'lime starvation.' * In all cases of incipient tuberculosis there is a deficiency of calcium. Many do not eat food containing enough lime. * In such cases we must resort to lime medication."

Calcium chloride should be given a fair trial in such cases, because one of its ionic constituents, chlorine, forms an ionic combination with other mineral agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Where its use is combined with proper diet, fresh air and hygienic living, we believe it will prove beneficial in any case of tuberculosis.

It contains no opiates nor drug or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Sold by all Rexall Drug Stores and leading druggists.

What Happened to Jane

Jane Hears That She Is Expected to Marry Augustus Reeves.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER X.

Copyright, 1913, by The Star Company.

THE long evening ended at last, and Augustus Reeves suggested with a yawn that he "guessed he'd best be going."

Jane, who in the shadow of the honeysuckles had sat quiet, with half-closed eyes, became wide awake at this remark. Reeves and her mother had carried on most of the conversation since supper. Ezra Hardy, who before supper had had a talk with Augustus, was more silent than usual, and Jane wondered whether he and his guest had had some discussion that had disturbed the host's mind.

Then she asked herself what topic could possibly concern both men enough to worry her father—after which she began to think her own thoughts.

These turned naturally tonight to Edward Sanderson. His letter was still hidden in her blouse, and once or twice she touched it with her hand just to hear the faint rustle of the paper. Tomorrow she would write to him—unless that would be too soon to answer his epistle. Perhaps she ought to wait longer; it might be more maidenly to keep him in a state of expectation for a few days before replying. Well, never mind!—meantime she could make a memorandum of various little happenings about which to tell him.

She smiled in the dark as she mused on the annoyed expression with which he would read her account of her drive with Augustus Reeves. No wonder Mr. Reeves looked with contempt—for the farmer certainly was a bore. Yet how hard her mother was exerting herself to entertain him! Could she possibly like him as much as she seemed to?

When her reflections had reached this point they became hazy. The drive had made her sleepy and the droning periods of the guest added to her sense of drowsiness.

It was, therefore, with a guilty start that she heard Reeves announce his intention to depart. Her father walked down to the front gate with him, and the pair lingered there talking so long that Mrs. Hardy and Jane entered the house without waiting for the husband and father.

Jane, after asking if there was any way in which she could be of service, and receiving the information that there was none, kissed her mother good night and went to her

JANE HEARS HER PARENTS TALKING

When she put out her light and got into bed her parents had not yet come upstairs. She wondered idly and drowsily what could detain them. If they were as sleepy as she, she was sure they would both be in bed by now.

It was only a half-hour later that she awoke with a gasp, but it seemed to her that many hours had passed since she had lost consciousness. She sat up in bed listening. A murmur of voices reached her ears. Her father and mother were still downstairs, talking. What could be the matter? Surely something was wrong.

Slipping on a wrapper over her gown, and thrusting her feet into her slippers, she hurried out into the hall and towards the head of the stairs. If there was something troubling them, and they were trying to keep it from her, she, as their daughter, had a right to know of it and help them bear the burden. On the top step she paused, for her father's plaintive voice arrested her attention.

"The worst of it is that I've just got to have that money," he was saying. "And as I can't sell that land to Deems—since he's gone back on his promise and changed his mind about taking it—I've got to borrow, that's all. I hate to do it at my age. Reeves says he'll think about lending it to me, and if he will there's nothing else but for me to take it. I can give him a note, I suppose. But when and how am I going to pay him back?"

"Now don't you fuss about that, pa," his wife urged soothingly. "It'll be all right. You just see if it won't. Mr. Reeves is a good man and he'll fix it some way. He understands.

"I hope he does, and that he'll decide to help me out," the man went on. "If he does, and then if he gets Jane the place in the school here—why, that will help along for a while."

THEY MAKE A GOOD DEAL HANG ON JANE

"Of course it will," Mrs. Hardy agreed. "Now, don't you go to worrying any more. It's not your fault that the land is mortgaged, nor it's not your fault that you're in debt, so it'll all come out right."

"I guess it may if"—— the man began, then paused. "Perhaps it may," he began again, "if Jane don't spoil that she don't like Gus Reeves. I told you I kinder suspected it was on her account he's coming here so often nowadays—now, I might as well say that I know it is."

"Sure it is!" the mother broke in eagerly. She had thought as much about the affair that she scented a romance in the wind, and forced herself to suppress her qualms with regard to a possible loveless marriage for her child.

Mrs. Hardy was one of the women who can make their beliefs fit their desires.

"I really think," she added, "that Janie don't dislike Mr. Reeves as much as I was afraid she did."

"Well!" the man pushed back his chair so suddenly that the listener upstairs started violently. "I just won't worry about it if I can help it! But, after all, everything about it depends on Jane."

The subject of this conversation stood for a moment with her hands clenched, then, with a gasp, ran back into her room, closing the door softly behind her.

What did they mean? Everything about it depended upon her? Could it be——

But she dared not let herself think too honestly on this subject.

"Of course," she murmured over and over, "they mean that my getting the place in the Milton school depends upon myself. If I am horrid to old Reeves he won't get it for me. So it all depends on me—that's what they mean."

Yet underneath all this special pleading she had a sickening fear of what her father's speech might signify.

Adventures in Saving

Here is another instructive letter on saving from an AMERICAN reader. It shows what can be done if the will to save is present.

By JAMES D——

AT twenty-one I had $75 in the bank and took out a twenty-year endowment insurance policy for $1,000, which I have kept up regularly. My salary was small, but I put money away till I had $600 in bank.

My employer invested $.00 for me in stocks which paid 7 per cent. interest. This gave me more encouragement to save, so that when I had another $500 invested in more stock, so that each year my income increased, and, with my savings, increased rapidly.

I also invested in two lots which I own free and clear. As my salary increased I saved a little more.

My motto was stick to your job and get to the top, always looking out for your employer's welfare.

I believe every young man should take some life insurance, real estate, or some investment which will encourage him to save. In this respect I feel I have done what most young men want to put off until they marry; then they cannot assume so much responsibility.

I always allow myself a fair amount of recreation and amusement, but have never sported around. I have always given a helping hand to my family, and still do so with pleasure. I have practiced depriving myself of many things, until now I can afford to get most of the things I really need.

I hope my example may inspire some one to begin saving at once; it will make them better and more ambitious. Having completed fourteen years in my position, I am now prepared to share life's responsibilities with an adventurer in saving of the opposite sex.

Do You Know That—

Pampering Your Children a Folly

To Enjoy the Comforts You Have Earned Is More of a Duty Than to Furnish Your Offspring With Unneeded Luxuries

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

DO not deny yourself comforts and pleasures in order to give your children luxuries.

There is nothing worth while in such a course of action, and almost invariably the result is injurious to the best interests of the children and of society at large.

Give the children you bring into this sphere of existence your love, your sympathy and your counsel. Study them as you would study the most important problems. Make yourself acquainted with their temperaments and dispositions, and train yourself to exercise patience in dealing with their weaknesses. Remember, they may have inherited some of these weaknesses.

An example of self-control, kindness and sympathy is the greatest wealth you can bestow on your children. Give them such opportunities to develop their strength and best character as you can, without too great sacrifice of your own needs.

If you are able to enjoy some blessings of your toil, enjoy them. Instead of hoarding your dollars to give your children luxuries which they have not earned, or leaving a fortune to be fought over.

The worst characteristics human nature is capable of frequently develop in children of unselfish parents when the division of property is made—property which the children had no part in earning.

Not long ago a sober, industrious and contented laborer received word that an inheritance had fallen to him, and he at once began to neglect his work, to adopt vices, and finally committed suicide in a mood of despairing rage because law was slow in giving him all he believed his due.

I met two young women to whom a fortune had been left. I knew what sacrifices their dead parents had made to give them the luxuries and advantages they were enjoying, and I studied them with care. Two more arrogant, selfish and unlovable young women I have rarely encountered. They made frequent references to "common people" and spoke patronisingly of the "middle classes."

Yet the father of these girls had been a poor boy, and a self-made man, and the maternal grandfather had begun life as a peddler until he earned the money to study a profession. Money hoarded for two generations, and the sacrifices of parents and grandparents, brought no happier results in the third than two arrogant and purse-proud girls, who would have been rendered nobler and sweeter, no doubt, if they had been obliged to come in closer association with the "common people" and the "middle classes."

I grow to believe there is a curse upon money we do not earn. Certain it is that we rarely find the greatest characteristics or the worthiest qualities developed in the children who have been spared all effort and shielded from all responsibilities, and upon whom has been showered the undeserved wealth or self-denying parents, while scarcely a day passes that we do not encounter or hear of selfishness, greed, crime or folly which has resulted directly from inherited wealth.

Enjoy the proceeds of your labor—be charitable, generous, benevolent while you live; give your children a happy home and reasonable pleasures and advantages, but do not sacrifice your life to them.

You only worry yourself and them and society by such a course. They will be better citizens if you let them work for what they have.

Anecdotes of the Famous

IT is related that at one period Rudyard Kipling was extremely annoyed by the injury done to his trees by the driver of a local omnibus and wrote a vigorous letter of complaint to the man, who was also the landlord of an inn. The landlord sold the letter for ten shillings. A second and stronger letter followed. This found a purchaser at one pound, for its increased violence made it more valuable. To it, as to the former letter, the landlord made no reply. To him Kipling entered the next day, brisk and breathless.

"Why didn't I answer your letters, sir?" replied the landlord. "Why, I was hoping you'd send me a fresh one. They put me a deal better than bus driving."

Daniel Wilson, Bishop of Calcutta, was eccentric. An usual, at family prayers, which he invariably conducted himself, he prayed by name for the people staying with him. There was a gentleman from Madras for whom he prayed, and then he said, "Let us pray for his dear wife and children." A thought struck him; he paused and said to his chaplain, "By-the-bye, is he a married man?" "No, my lord, he is not married." "Ah, well, never mind," he remarked, "he may marry, and the children may come!"

On another occasion he was preaching against the sin of avarice, when he delivered himself of the following remarks: "My brethren, there are several forms of avarice; one form has recently been brought home to me most unpleasantly. You all know my archdeacon there, a most excellent man; well last week he sold me a horse for five hundred rupees; it is not worth ten. This, my brethren, I consider a most unpleasant form of avarice."

Wilton Lackaye is a stickler for correct English on and off the stage, and he never loses an opportunity to put the wording on the right path in this respect.

One afternoon Mr. Lackaye walked into a drug store and stated to a clerk his need—a man's comb.

"Do you want a narrow man's comb?" was the inquiry addressed to him.

"No," said Mr. Lackaye, with the utmost gravity. "What I desire is a comb for a stout man with rubber teeth."

An amusing story is told by Lord Saye and Sele. He once attended a book dinner at which all the guests were expected to appear with an emblem denoting the title of a book. Lord Saye and Sele went in ordinary evening dress, but carried a lady's petticoat over his arm. No one could guess what book he represented, but when he told them every one laughed. He represented Kipling's famous book, "Life's Handicap." He won the first prize.

"Coppers"

First National—Trinity

My compliments to Blank and Blank and the traders who went short of more than 40,000 shares of First National and Trinity yesterday. On account of the great activity in these stocks during the past few days, they assured themselves that I was doing nothing more than waging a market campaign.

Yesterday morning, under the supervision of Blank and Blank, they cut the bottom out of the prices of both stocks and held their baskets to catch the deluge. It was evident, to all interested, that however effective the price cutting may have been, those who worked the game missed getting the low-priced stock they were after because other buyers secured most of it.

Those who sold the blocks of stock short probably will be compelled to pay $20 to $25 for Trinity and $10 to $15 for First National. These shorts can be driven in at a heavy loss any time I demand a return of the stock they are borrowing. At present I have no desire to interfere with their scheme. My sole interest, as I said at the beginning and have said since, is:

To secure options on First National in an aggregate sufficient to carry out my plans, and to have Trinity remain inactive until I can formulate my arrangements for both properties.

The ups and downs of either stock are of no import to me now.

If I carry through my plans, nothing—much less the interference of those who worked yesterday's game—can prevent either stock from being worth and selling for more than present prices, even though I abandon my plans and send the ore of both companies to the Mammoth smelter, and the product of the ores to the present high metal market.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the last hour, a number being at their lowest for the day. The market withstood heavy selling pressure in the afternoon in a satisfactory way. An Anglo-French loan transaction in New York for $3,000 was at 97⅞. At 2:15 declines included: Allis-Chalmers 1, Lackawanna Steel 2¾, Baldwin 1½, Crucible 1, General Motors 10, Republic Steel 1⅛, Studebaker 1⅛, Willys Overland 5½, Inspiration ⅜, Utah ⅜, Anaconda ⅝, Rock Island ¼, St. Paul 1, Northern Pacific ¼, and New Haven ⅛.

Among gains were American Can ⅝, American Smelting 2⅝, Car & Foundry ⅞, Bethlehem 8, General Electric 2¼, Mexican Petroleum 1, Westinghouse 2½, Union Pacific ¼, Southern Pacific ⅛, Reading ½, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1½, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛, Atchison ⅛ and Chino ⅛. U. S. Steel was unchanged, as was Tennessee Copper.

In Boston Trinity was off ⅛, U. S. Smelting ¼, Shoe Machinery ⅛, North Butte ⅛, Greene-Cananea 1, Calumet & Arizona ½, Allouez ⅝ and Alaska Gold ⅛. Among gains were Tamarack ½, Granby, ex-dividend, ¾, Copper Range ¼, Butte & Superior ⅛, Gulf common 1⅜, United Fruit 1, New Haven ⅛, Boston & Maine 1, Elevated 1 and Woolen preferred ½.

PRICES WERE IRREGULAR.

There was no definite trend to prices in New York. The list was irregular at the start, and rallies and recessions alternated afterwards. The effect of war news was more bearish than otherwise. Foreign selling of rails continued. The metal market condition was adverse to coppers. A few war industrials held gains well. There is talk about American Can obtaining a new contract. The market was much less active. Share transactions did not total 400,000 for the morning. Compared with the recent average, prices did not have much range. Foreign exchange opened a little firmer. An improvement is expected with the absorption of the foreign loan. British and French envoys conferred with Morgan men yesterday, and Wall Street thought it significant. One explanation reads: "It is believed members of the commission and prominent bankers were discussing the matter of a further credit to supplement the $500,000,000 loan should the occasion arise." The public did not manifest as much interest in stocks as has been observed of late. Trading was professional, and bulls assert fluctuations had slight significance. Some operators think U. S. Steel has discounted anything directors may do at their next meeting.

During the morning Bethlehem Steel sold at the high record price of 475. American Smelting was at its highest in five years. Both big and little speculators were quick to take profits. There is a disposition to await developments and nothing happened to indicate what turn prices will take next. The supply of stocks has increased and large interests are showing no inclination to accumulate at the present level. The indicated gain in cash for the week by New York banks is $16,756,000.

TRINITY UP AND DOWN.

Trinity was fairly active in Boston, where the list reflected New York, rallying at times after opening lower. Trading was of less volume and narrower than before this week. There was no particular feature. Coppers were the most interesting group. Demand for metal has diminished at home and abroad. One large agency is offering electrolytic at 18 cents a pound. Spot copper was off 2s. 6d. in London, where futures and electrolytic were unchanged. So was spelter. Lead advanced 6s. 3d.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Now that the World's Series has been concluded and the Red Sox are secure in their title, the motor business, as well as all other lines, has returned to its usual condition, and all unmindful of the struggles that have gone, the dealers and salesmen are once again preaching the gospel of motoring and the virtues of the particular car they handle. The play time is past, the work day is here.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The AMERICAN disapproves of a loan to prolong the war in Europe and is unwilling to accept any money for advertising such a loan. The AMERICAN does not, however, feel at liberty to deprive its readers of the statements of the proponents of the loan, whether in news text or in advertising. The AMERICAN therefore prints the advertisement of the loan, but contributes the money paid therefor to the Red Cross, in the hope of relieving some of the suffering and injury which a war loan will inevitably cause.

Read Governor Walsh's Speech on "Invisible Government"

He Tells You What It Means in Massachusetts, and He Has Felt Its Spooky Hand.

THE other night, speaking at Walpole, Governor Walsh expounded the "invisible government." What he said was true, and he put it very interestingly and clearly. He illustrated his description of invisible government by some experiences which he has had during this last year at the State House. It is the kind of opposition which he has met for two years, particularly during the last year, when, by reason of the refusal of the Progressives to follow Joseph Walker, the standpat Republican majority in the Legislature was considerably increased.

It will be remembered that Candidate Cushing denounced Candidate McCall as the candidate of the special interests who constitute the invisible government. We quote Governor Walsh's exposition of invisible government because it will make a good AMERICAN editorial. It tells the story of conditions at the State House when the Legislature is under the control of a standpat Republican majority.

"In the primary campaign one of the candidates declared that the other candidate was being backed by an invisible government. What did he mean when he said this? He meant that the invisible government is a combination of rich men representing corporate interests, who back candidates for public office so that they may control those candidates when elected.

"Has anyone in the last two years ever accused Governor Walsh of being the candidate of this invisible government? Has any corporation sought for one moment to direct or control me in my administration of the office of Governor? I answer no, and no better proof that I was not controlled by this invisible government can be presented than that I vetoed the obnoxious railroad bill and its riders. That railroad bill sought to steal from you and me, but it did not succeed.

"Now, is there such a thing as this invisible government the Republican candidate spoke about? There is such an invisible government, and I will illustrate with a few instances just how it works.

"I recommended to the Legislature an investigation into telephone rates and charges, something that has never been done in this Commonwealth. The Legislature asked the Public Service Commission for what it thought about the matter. The Public Service Commission reported back to the Legislature that the investigation ought to be made. Then the matter went to a committee of the Legislature. Everybody was in favor of the measure, even the telephone company attorneys in open speech favoring it. Yet after the doors were closed and weeks passed the committee reported against it. That is how invisible government works and how it overcomes your government.

"Here is another illustration of how the invisible government works. A year ago the mutual insurance companies made a complaint to me that they were being driven out of business because of the tactics of the stock companies. I sent the matter to the Legislature. The Legislature authorized me to appoint a commission to investigate. I appointed two Republicans, the State Insurance Commissioner and the State Actuary, and a Democrat. This commission recommended to the Legislature three bills. Every one of those bills were rejected. Not even a rollcall was ordered on any of them and nobody knows how the Representatives and Senators stood on them. That is how this invisible government works.

"Now you will naturally ask me what remedy I have to suggest for this invisible government, which is able to set at naught the most beneficial and most demanded reforms. You have a right to ask me not to declaim against an evil unless I can suggest a remedy for it or to hold my opponent responsible for it unless I can point out a means of overcoming it which he himself cannot, or will not, indicate.

"The remedy is clearly the adoption of the Initiative and the Referendum. These two great instruments of popular government first saw the light in the Republic of Switzerland, where the invisible government was making the Swiss republic the most corrupt in the world, and where all ordinary efforts to shake off its power had dismally failed.

"When the Swiss people had despaired of ever purging their Legislature of this corrupt control, they decided to take the power out of the hands of their Legislature whenever it seemed necessary on matters where the legislative action was likely to be corrupt. They took this power into their own hands by means of what is called the Initiative and Referendum. By the Initiative they were enabled to pass a good law over the heads of the Legislature whenever the Legislature corruptly refused to pass it. By the Referendum they were enabled to veto a bad law which the Legislature had corruptly passed. Today Switzerland is recognized as one of the purest governments in the world. Her Legislatures have respect, which they did not have before the adoption of the Initiative and Referendum. The men in public life have honor; the people have confidence in their public servants; and the State has political peace.

"That is the remedy which I propose for the invisible government in Massachusetts. So strongly was I persuaded that this is the one great remedy that I was the first Governor in thirty years to appear before the Legislature in favor of a reform measure, when I went before the legislative committee to urge upon it a constitutional amendment giving us this splendid instrument for purifying our government, namely, the Initiative and Referendum.

"It requires a two-thirds vote of the House of Representatives and a majority in the Senate, two years in succession, to cause a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the people. I have given up hope that, in a Legislature controlled as our Legislatures are, we shall ever get the Initiative and Referendum by this means. Every man who serves in the Legislature knows that the sentiment of this State is overwhelmingly in favor of the Initiative and Referendum.

"The two political parties which endorsed the Initiative and Referendum received almost two-thirds of the vote in the last two State elections, and in those Representative districts where the Representatives voted against the Initiative and Referendum when the question was submitted to their constituents on the ballot, their constituents voted three and four to one in every district in favor of the Initiative and Referendum.

"But a controlled Legislature does not care for public opinion. It snaps its fingers at popular majorities. We can only get the Initiative and Referendum by a constitutional convention and for that reason I have advocated a constitutional convention for the last two years. The candidate of the Republican party has at last, two years late, agreed to such a convention, and the Republican party has endorsed it. But the suggestion came from me. I fought for it. It comes from my heart. I believe in it; and in my hands it is in the hands of a friend. I would never permit a call to the constitutional convention which is likely to turn out such an instrument as is now about to be presented to the people of New York under the cunning ministrations of Elihu Root. The Republican party in Massachusetts reluctantly conceded the necessity of a constitutional convention."

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Stranger

A HANDSOME stranger's come to town,
A ravisher of hearts,
With curly hair and eyes of brown,
And all a wooer's arts.
And she who swore that naught should dim
Her love and constancy
Now trots around the town with him,
And has no eyes for me.

WITH envious glance I see them go
Along the avenue;
They walk with laggard steps and slow,
Like lovers always do.
Their eyes meet every little while,
And I, alas! can tell
That in hers lies that tender smile
I used to know so well.

WHAT arts he used in winning her
I only wish I knew.
If I could fancy what they were,
Why, I would use them, too.
His voice? His eyes? His silken hair?
I wish I might divine,
And then perhaps some day he'd share
This loneliness of mine.

IT'S hard to think that one who swore
That all the long years through
The love that all for me she bore
Would constant be and true
Would pick up with a chap like this,
Like jilts in story books,
And feed with fond enraptured bliss
Upon his very looks.

IT'S hard to know that womankind
Are false as they are fair,
And that all love is really blind,
As poets always swear.
However masterful are men,
However brave and strong,
They'll meet a conquering rival when
A baby comes along.

Divide 'Fifty-Fifty' with Spouse

Grafting of Wives and Selfishness of Husbands Cause of Disaster.

By Dorothy Dix

THIS is the sixth commandment of matrimony:

THOU SHALT SPLIT THY PLEASURES AND THY SHEKELS "FIFTY-FIFTY" WITH THE PARTNER OF THY BOSOM.

One of the great troubles of matrimony is that few couples ever have the honesty and fairness to make a fair divide of its responsibilities and burdens and pleasures and perquisites.

Sometimes it is the husband who "welches" on his end of the bargain. Sometimes it is the wife who ducks out from under her end of it. Sometimes you see a husband who thinks he has a right to be a little tin god in his house, while his wife should be contented to be an adoring slave.

Sometimes it is the wife who feels that she is entitled to all the domestic sweets, while her husband is left only the bitter; but seldom do you see a man and woman working together and splitting "fifty-fifty" in domestic life. And when you do see this, you behold an inspiring spectacle of connubial bliss.

There are women who look upon matrimony as graft, and at husbands as easy things that they work for their individual profit. These are the ladies that we see resplendent in the latest creations from Paris, while their husbands wear coats that are shiny at the seams and hats of last year's vintage. These are the ladies who roll about in limousines while their husbands hang on to straps in street cars, and who go to Bar Harbor in Summer and Palm Beach in the Winter, while their husbands toil on through heat and cold with never a vacation in their hard-worked lives.

Women Grafters

These women—and their name is Mrs. Legion—do not make an even divide of matrimony. They are grafters who grab everything desirable that is in sight. They shunt the whole family burden on to their husband's poor shoulders, instead of bearing their share.

You often hear a woman hypocritically bemoaning the fact that her husband will wear hand-me-down clothes, or that he won't ever go off to trips with her, or that he doesn't keep up with the new books and new plays, when the truth is that she works the poor fellow so hard to pay for her finery and luxuries that she doesn't leave him any time or strength or money for himself. He'd like to be well dressed and to amuse himself if she'd only split "fifty-fifty" with him, instead of leaving him only a jitney out of a dollar.

It is not always the woman, however, who is the family monopolist. Quite as often it is the man who holds to the cheerful theory that the husband, being the head of the house, is entitled to all the prerogatives thereof.

These are the men who think that when they marry they have conferred such an inestimable favor on a woman that she should never expect anything more to be done for her. They are strong for the contention that woman's place is in the home, and that she should ask no livelier amusement than taking care of the children and meeting her husband with a glad, sweet smile.

Selfishness in Men

These are the men who look about twenty years younger than their wives, and who are turned out by the best tailors, while their wives make their own clothes—and look it.

These are the men who always have plenty of money to belong to fashionable clubs, and to play golf, and to open wine in restaurants for chorus girls, but who dole out carfare to their wives by the nickel, and raise ructions over the size of the bills on the first of the month, and begrudge the baby certified milk.

Now, no really happy home was ever founded on selfishness, and no egotist was ever a successful home builder. No man ever loved a woman well enough to enjoy being "worked" by her. No woman was ever self-abnegating enough to enjoy being offered up as a daily sacrifice to her husband. Patient Grizelda is a mythical character. She never existed in real life.

The only way that any real happiness in married life is ever achieved is for the husband and wife to make an equal divide of everything, and this is just as much true of work, and cares, and responsibilities as it is of joys and pleasures. No woman ever feels herself a real wife to her husband until he lets her in on the ground floor of his struggles and his ambitions. No woman ever feels that she is a real helpmeet to her husband until she has actually helped through some crisis.

It isn't enough for a real woman to be a show window by which her husband advertises his prosperity by hanging fine clothes and jewels on her. She wants to be something more to him—to enter into his real life—and if men only understood this, and talked to their wives about their business, and their hopes and plans, fewer men would have to complain of woman's extravagance.

Square Deal Pays

Women would be satisfied with very little if they knew that their husbands were giving them a square deal. It's the suspicion that they are being cheated of their share of the profits of the domestic partnership that makes the silent partner so often throw the firm into bankruptcy.

And the woman who realizes that it's up to her to give her husband a fair run for his money, and her part is to make a comfortable home, to be thrifty and cheerful and contented, has grappled her husband to her with hooks of steel. She can laugh at sirens and snap her fingers at age, for she has built her house of happiness upon the eternal rocks.

To make matrimony a success, forget not the sixth commandment, which says: THOU SHALT SPLIT THY PLEASURES AND THY SHEKELS "FIFTY-FIFTY" WITH THE PARTNER OF THY BOSOM.

Storm Centres

By Jane McLean

A WIDE sea waste, with lowering clouds.
Sweeping above the roll of foam—
Pale rain-clouds clad in misty shrouds;
A ship at sea, sails spread for home,
And rain, wind-maddened, shivering by,
Till westward gleams the first clear sky.

Long lashes cast discreetly low;
The quivering of a tender chin;
Rose-color in a wavering glow
Glimpsing the tide that swells within—
Till, with the tears that quickly dry,
Eyes misty still, the storm sweeps by.
